Part II. Institutes and Associations

Chapter 3.
Catholic Institutes of Consecrated Life
And
Societies of Apostolic Life

1.1 Institutes founded by Vincent de Paul.

FRANCE

1.1-FRA.625.22

Congregation of the Mission

(Lazarists or Vincentian Fathers and Brothers)

Founded 1625 in Paris, France, by Vincent de Paul (1581-1660, canonized 1737) with the collaboration and financial support of Françoise Marguerite de Silly, Madame de Gondi (1580-1625) and her husband, Philippe Emmanuel de Gondi (d. 1662), the Count of Joigny and General of the Galleys of France, in order to evangelize the rural poor. The initial apostolates included preaching missions as a means of evangelizing in rural areas and formation of the clergy through seminary education. The first missionary thrusts were to Madagascar and the British Isles. The first motherhouse was the Bons-Enfants (1625-1632), the second was Saint Lazare (1632-1792), the third is at 95 rue de Sèvres where the relics of Vincent de Paul are enshrined. The institute received papal approval from Urban VIII in 1633.¹ Approximately 4000 members serve in eighty countries. Its members are known by various names in different countries: Vincentian Fathers and Brothers, Lazaristes, Padres Paules, and Padres Paulinos. (Generalate: Via dei Capasso, 30; 00164 Rome, Italy.)

1.1-FRA.633.22
Company of the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul, Servants of the Sick Poor
(Grey Sisters)

Founded 1633 in Paris, France, by Vincent de Paul (1581-1660, canonized 1737) and Louise de Marillac (1591-1660, canonized 1934) in order to serve the poor. This institute developed from the parish based Confraternities of Charity and became the first successful institute of uncloistered religious women serving in the active apostolate. As such, the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity became a prototype (see L-1.1-FRA.617.22). The rule developed by the cofounders was first explained to the sisters on 31 July 1634 and refined on the basis of the lived experience. Saint Vincent invited the sisters to sign the Act of Establishment of the Company on 8 August 1655. However, Saint Vincent’s immediate successor as superior general, Reverend René Alméras, C.M. (1613-1672; superior general 1661-1672), reorganized Saint Vincent’s original text, which was a series of articles, and arranged them into chapters. Alméras also included some teachings of the founder that had not yet been published. This edition was in effect 1672-1983 and became commonly known as the rule of Vincent which other founders adopted. In imitation of Saint Vincent’s first Daughters, whom Vincent called his “good country girls,” many communities carry the title “Sisters of Charity” and adopted a similar habit. The

Seventeenth-century Daughter of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Paris

\(^2\)Vincent de Paul remarked in the conference of 18 November 1657 that the rules (published in 1655) contained forty-three articles. See the text in CED, 10: 363 or in Conferences to the Daughters of Charity, 4: 3. See also Chapter 1, “Design and Methodology,” note 7.
original habit was grey with a large white cornette (peasant head dress). Following the French Revolution when the habit was regularized (after temporarily wearing black), blue-grey was adopted towards the end of the nineteenth century. The institute first received ecclesiastical approval by the archbishop of Paris in 1646, but the first approbation, together with the royal letters patent were inexplicably lost. Cardinal de Retz, archbishop of Paris, gave his approval on 16 January 1655.

The statutes of this institute were confirmed in the name of Pope Clement IX by his legate, Cardinal Louis de Bourbon, duke de Vendôme, on 8 July 1668. Vincent de Paul had modified these statutes at the insistence of Louise de Marillac so that the Daughters of Charity would be under the perpetual direction of Vincent and his successors as superior general of the Congregation of the Mission. At its motherhouse are enshrined the relics of Saint Louise de Marillac and Saint Catherine Labouré, D.C., (1806-1876, canonized 1947) in the chapel of the Miraculous Medal. Approximately 27,000 Daughters of Charity serve in eighty-three countries. (Generalate: 140 rue du Bac; 75340 Paris, Cedex 07, France.)

1.2 Institutes which adopted the Common Rules of Vincent de Paul or substantially incorporated major principles into their rule.

AUSTRIA

1.2-AUS.823.1.11.3

Sisters of Charity of Zams
(Sisters of Mercy of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Established 1823 at Zams in Tirol, Austria, from the Strasbourg foundation (see 4.1-FRA.734.3.11F) by Reverend Nicolaus Tolentin Schuler (1756-1831) who had sent his niece, Caterina Lins (Mother Josepha Nicolina, d. 1836), to Strasbourg for formation. She returned with the rule with which the institute began. At the insistence of Emperor Frederick I, the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity of Paris were adopted in 1835. (In 1844 all sisters in that area adopted the rule of Vincent de Paul.) Their mission includes pastoral ministry, education of youth, and care of the sick and aged. This institute honors Vincent de Paul as its patron, and despite chronology, also as its founder. It is the root of other foundations: Vienna, Austria, 1832;
Munich, Germany, 1834; Freiburg, Germany, 1846; Innsbruck, Austria, 1839; Graz, Austria, 1841; Augsburg, Germany, 1862.\(^4\) (Generalate: Klostergasse, 10; 6511 Zams; Tirol, Austria.)

1.2-AUS.832.1.11

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Vienna (Sisters of Charity of Mercy of Saint Vincent de Paul; Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul, Daughters of Christian Charity)

Established 1832 near Vienna at Gumpendorf, Austria, as a branch of the Sisters of Charity of Zams (see 4.1-AUS.823.11.3) when that institute opened a house in response to the request of Empress Caroline Augusta of Habsburg-Lotharingen (widow of Emperor Francis I) and Count Ludwig Graf Coudenhove in order to minister to the victims of the great cholera epidemic of that year. The institute was based on the Daughters of Charity in Paris (see 1.1-FRA.633.22), and initially influenced the Sisters of Mercy of Verona (see 1.2-ITA.840.0). Sister Josepha Nicolina Lins (who had received her formation from the institute of Strasbourin Alsace, now France) arrived with several sisters from the Zams branch to begin this mission.

Empress Caroline of Austria is considered the founder and Vincent de Paul became patron of the institute. However, in 1832, Vincent Edouard Milde (1777-1853), archbishop of Vienna (1832-1853), refused to grant authorization because he discovered that the rule from Strasbourin was not the original rule of Vincent de Paul for his Daughters of Charity but that of the Daughters of Saint Paul of Chartres (founded 1696 by Reverend Louis Chauvet).\(^5\) Though Vincentian in spirit, it did not allow for visiting of the sick in their homes which was the local need, and the empress wanted the sisters to be able to do so.
Therefore, the empress wanted the sisters to follow the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity of Paris. There was one unsuccessful attempt to unite the institute with the Daughters of Charity of Paris. When that failed, Empress Caroline obtained the Common Rules of Saint Vincent from the Daughters of Charity in Lemberg (Lvov) in the region of Galicia (then in the Austrian Empire) where the Daughters of Charity had a foundation from 1652-1772.⁶ (See 1.2-USA.902.1.11F.)⁷ (Generalate: Postfach 56; Gumpendorfer Strasse, 108A; 1062 Vienna, Austria.)

CANADA

1.2-CAN.843.11
Sisters of Charity of Providence
(Daughters of Charity, Servants of the Poor)

Founded 1843 at Montreal, Canada, by Bishop Ignace Bourget (1799-1885) who had wanted the Daughters of Charity of Paris for his diocese. Madame Émilie Gamelin (née Tavernier, 1800-1851), a Lady of Charity, sought admission to this new institute and was sent to New York and Baltimore to visit with Mother Seton’s Sisters of Charity (see 1.2-USA.809.11.2F). When she visited Emmitsburg, Reverend Louis Regis Deluol, S.S., (superior, 1826-1830; 1841-1849) of the Sisters of Charity of Saint Joseph’s, allowed her to take the original copy of the French rule back to Canada, where it was later copied and the original returned. They are dedicated to serving the poorest of the poor. Their rule includes the first chapter of the Common Rules of Saint Vincent for the Daughters of Charity. Also related to the Sisters of ⁶The text of the Common Rules arrived in German, so the name Sisters of Mercy (Barmherzigen Schwestern) is merely the translation of Filles de la Charité. The sisters of the new institute were formed to serve the poor corporally and spiritually in any form of poverty. Pope Gregory XVI approved the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul for the institute at Vienna in 1835. Historically speaking, this approval represents the first papal approbation of the rule of Saint Vincent de Paul. Vienna became the cradle of other foundations: Satu-Mare (Sátamár), Romania (formerly Hungary), 1842; and Zagreb, Croatia (formerly Yugoslavia), 1844. Otto Schnelle, C.M., MEGVIS (January 1986): 9; DIP, s.v. “Carità di San Vincenzo de’ Paoli, Figlie della Carità Cristiana,” 2: 377-78.

1.2-CAN.854.1.11.3F
Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception

Founded 1854 at Saint John, New Brunswick in Canada, by Honora Conway (Sister Mary Vincent, 1815-1892) to care for children left orphaned after a cholera epidemic. The founder was a novice with the Sisters of Charity at Mount-Saint-V Vincent-on-the-Hudson (see 1.2-USA.846.1.11) who volunteered to go to Canada at the urgent request of Bishop Thomas Connolly, O.F.M. Cap., (1815-1876). The motto of this institute is "Praise God." This institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation. (Generalate: Box 2266; Saint John, New Brunswick E2L 3V1, Canada.)

1.2-CAN.856.3F
Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul

Founded 1856 at Halifax in Nova Scotia, Canada, by William Walsh, bishop of Halifax (1844-1858), with the assistance of the Sisters of Charity of Mount-Saint-V Vincent-on-the-Hudson (see 1.2-USA.846.1.11) who had established the 1849 mission of New York and supplied the first sisters and officers for the new Halifax institute. Mother Basilia McCann (c. 1810-1870) was their first superior. Their rule was modified for Canada but was based on that of the New York institute that had originally been adopted by Mother Seton. This institute of diocesan right is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.¹¹ (Generalate: 150 Bedford Highway; Halifax, Nova Scotia B3M 3J5, Canada.)

1.2-CAN.861.3.11.1

Sisters of Providence of Saint Vincent de Paul

Founded 1861 at Kingston in Ontario, Canada, by Bishop Edward John Horan (1817-1875) to serve the sick poor. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute and his rule is followed. Education and diverse pastoral ministries are the apostolates. Catherine McKinley (Sister Mary Edward, 1837-1904) was the first sister professed and superior general. Horan developed his institute from the Sisters of Providence of Montreal and also gave rise to the Sisters of Providence of Holyoke, United States. Their motto is "A heart consecrated to charity."¹² (See 1.2-USA.892.1 and 1.2-CAN.843.11.) (Generalate: 1200 Princess Street; Kingston, Ontario Z7L 4W4, Canada.)

1.2-CAN.924.1F

The Religious of Notre-Dame-du-Sacre-Coeur

Encouraged by Bishop Edward Alfred LeBlanc (1870-1935), an Acadian, Suzanne Cyr (Sister Marie Anne, 1850-1941) and fifty-two other sisters formed an independent institute in 1924. Established in 1871 as a mission at Bouctouche in New Brunswick, Canada, of the Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception to minister to French speaking Acadians in order to help them preserve language, culture, and faith. This institute of diocesan right essentially follows the Common Rules of Saint Vincent.¹³ This institute is a member of the Elizabeth

Seton Federation. (See 1.2-CAN.854.1.11.3F.). (Generalate: 1002, rue Amirault, Dieppe, New Brunswick E1A 1C9, Canada.)

CHILE

1.2-CHL.853.1
Sisters of Charity of Providence
(Daughters of Charity, Servants of the Poor)

Founded 1853 at Valparaiso, Chile, under the leadership of Mother Bernarda Morin (1832-1929) through the instrumentality of Bishop Ignace Bourget who had established the Sisters of Charity of Providence in Montreal (see 1.2-CAN.843.11). Its mission included child care in asylums, services to handicapped children, and education at the elementary and secondary level. Became autonomous 1880, but later reunited (1970) with the parent institute. (See 1.2-USA.892.1 and 1.2-CAN.861.3.1.11.)

CROATIA

1.2-CRO.856.1
Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Zagreb
(Croatian Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Established 1856 at Zagreb, Croatia, by Cardinal George Haulik van Varalya (1788-1869), archbishop of Zagreb, as a foundation of the Sisters of Charity of Zams (see 1.2-AUS.821.11.3) and some members from the Sisters of Charity of Innsbruck (see 4.1-AUS.839.3F). Their purpose is to serve the neighbor, especially the poor, in education and social services, according to the Vincentian charism. Vincent de Paul and Louise de Marillac are their patrons. The institute follows the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity. (Generalate: Frankopanska, 17; 41001 Zagreb p.p. 702; Croatia.)

---

1.2-FRA.734.3.11F

Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg
(Sœurs de la Toussaint)

Established 1734 at Saverne, France, by Cardinal Armand Gaston de Rohan Soubise, prince bishop of Strasbourg (1704-1749) to address the pressing needs of the poor, especially those with war injuries needing care in hospitals. The Sisters of Saint Paul of Chartres (founded 1696 by Reverend Louis Chauvet, 1664-1710) formed the new community's first postulants and loaned a sister to be novice mistress of this new institute. After Reverend Antoine Jeanjean became their superior in 1758, he developed a different rule based on that of Saint Vincent whom he designated their patron. (Vincent de Paul had been canonized in 1737.) Following the French Revolution, the institute formally adopted the name "Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul" but the original Daughters of Charity objected. The French government intervened in 1860 and prohibited the newer institute from using the same title. However, it had already been exported to other countries by sisters fleeing via the Rhine River to Germany, Austria, and Hungary during the French Revolution. The congregation in France was renamed the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg. United by the common bond of Saint Vincent de Paul as patron, nine other institutes stemming from this foundation formed the Vincentian Federation¹⁷ based in Germany in 1971.¹⁸ (Generalate: 11, rue de la Toussaint; 67081 Strasbourg, France.)

¹⁶ACMP, see Chalumeau, Notebook where he also includes the Sisters of Our Risen Savior (1809, France) as following the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity.
¹⁷Eleven institutes now constitute the Vincentian Federation including a new foundation in Kerala, India, the Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul.
1.2-GER.841.3.1.11F

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Paderborn_

Developed 1841 at Paderborn, Germany, from the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg under the authority of Frederick Clement Freiherr van Ledebur (1770-1841), bishop of Paderborn (1826-1841), who sent the two first aspirants to Strasbourg for formation (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F and 1.2-KOR.965.1). Their mission is care of the sick. It is a member of the Vincentian Federation. (See 4.1-IND.973.1.3F.)19 (Generalate: Am Busdorf 4; 33098 Paderborn, Germany.)

1.2-GER.846.1.11F

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Freiburg_

Developed 1846 at Freiburg, Germany, in Breisgau from the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg and became autonomous in 1970 (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F). It is a member of the Vincentian Federation. (See 4.1-IND.973.1.3F.)20 (Generalate: Habsburger Strasse 120; D-79104 Freiburg, Germany.)

1.2-GER.851.1

_Sisters of Divine Providence of Mainz_

Founded 1851 at Finthen, Germany, by William Emmanuel von Ketteler (1811-1877), bishop of Mainz, to assist, especially through education and nursing, the families of workers oppressed by the effects of the Industrial Revolution. Amelia Fanny de la Roche (d. 1857) was the first superior. Following German political problems related to the _Kulturkampf_ (1873), the institute came to the United States of America and made its first establishment in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Their rules are based on those of Saint Vincent de Paul, whom Ketteler named as the community patron.\(^2^1\) (Generalate: via delle Mura Aurelie, 10; 00165 Rome, Italy.)

1.2-GER.857.1F

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Hildesheim

Established 1857 at Hildesheim, Germany, by Edward Jacob Wedekin (1796-1870), bishop of Hildesheim (1850-1870). Traces its roots to the 1734 foundation of the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F) by Armand Gaston Maximilien Cardinal de Rohan Soubise (1674-1749) for general works of charity and education of young children and youth. It is a member of the Vincentian Federation. The founder adopted the Common Rules of Saint Vincent because it was timely; also recommended reading the conferences of Saint Vincent de Paul.\(^2^2\) (Generalate: Neue Strasse 16, Postfach 31107; 31134 Hildesheim, Germany.)

INDIA

1.2-IND.927.0

Vincentian Congregation

Founded 1927 in the archdiocese of Ernakulam at Thottakom in Kerala, India, by Reverends George Mannara (1891-1957), Antony Pauvathil (b. 1896), and George Vattamkandam (1896-1967) for native clergy to preach the gospel to the poor according to the spirit and example of Saint Vincent de Paul. Mar Louis Pazheparampil, the first vicar apostolic for Ernakulam, had visited Europe in 1905, met the Vincentians and obtained a copy of their rule. This institute follows Vincent's Common Rules of the Congregation of the Mission and his mission to evangelize and serve the poor, teach in seminaries, and minister to the laity. Follows the Syro-Malabar Rite. In 1951, the congregation had the services of Reverend Fernando Ibilcieta, C.M.,

(b. 1913), as director of the internal seminary.\textsuperscript{23} (Generalate: Chambokadavu Road, P.B. 2250, Edappally, Kochi, 682024, Kerala, South India.)

\textit{Congregation of the Preshitharam Sisters}

Founded 1964 by Reverend George Kochuparambil in the archdiocese of Ernakulam in Kerala, India, in order to visit the poor and the sick in their homes, to educate the children of the poor, and to teach catechism in the villages where other sisters do not normally go. The occasion for the establishment of this institute was to mark the silver jubilee of the priesthood of Joseph Cardinal Parecattil, archbishop of Ernakulam. The institute uses the \textit{Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity} with some adaptations. Priests from the Vincentian Congregation of India are engaged in the formation program. The Malayalam name of this institute means "Garden of Missionaries."\textsuperscript{24} (Generalate: Preshitharam Sisters, Kalady, Ernakulam Dt., 683574, Kerala, India.)

\textbf{INDONESIA}

1.2-IDO.990.1

\textit{Sisters of Charity of Jesus and Mary, Mother of Good Succor}

(Kongregasi Kasih Yesus dan Maria)

Established 1990 at Pematangsiantar in Sumatra of the archdiocese of Medan by missionaries as an autonomous branch of an institute of the same name (see 1.2-NTH.836.11). Their mission is to help the poor in the villages through education, health care, pastoral ministry, and social services. The sisters live and work according to the spirit of Vincent de Paul whose rule forms the basis for the rule of this institute. Quotations from Vincent de Paul are included in the constitutions of this institute of diocesan rite.²⁵ (Generalate: Biara KYM Mieke de Bref; Sumatra, Indonesia.)

IRELAND

1.2-IRE.833.2
Irish Vincentians

Begun 1833 at Dublin, Ireland, by four students of Maynooth Seminary who wanted to form an institute that would help post-Emancipation Irish clergy by giving missions. First engaged in education, the founding members (ordained 1832-1833) were the Reverends James Lynch, Peter Richard Kenrick (who subsequently left, went to the United States, and became the archbishop of Saint Louis), Anthony Reynolds, and Michael Bourke, later joined by Reverend Thomas MacNamara from Meath and the experienced Dean of Maynooth, Reverend Philip Dowley, considered as their leader. Reverend Edward Ferris, C.M., (1738-1809), assistant general of the Congregation of the Mission at the time of the French Revolution, had fled Paris for Ireland and worked at Maynooth Seminary. Twenty years later his copy of the Common Rules of the Congregation of the Mission was given to the young men interested in establishing the Vincentian community in Ireland. Since 1804 the Congregation of the Mission had been stabilizing after the traumas of the French Revolution. Having begun negotiations c. 1839, the Irish Vincentians united with the Congregation of the Mission of Paris on 1 November 1841.²⁶

ITALY

1.2-ITA.733.0
Sisters Ministers of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul
(Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Trecate)

Founded 1733 in Trecate, Italy, by Marchese Giovanni Battista Leonardi (1663-1733) and Reverend Pietro Francesco di Luigi

(1689-1757) in order to provide education and assistance to the poor in the spirit of Saint Vincent de Paul, their patron. This institute is modeled on the Daughters of Charity. The institute’s motto is: “The charity of Christ urges us.” It follows the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul.27 (Generalate: via Canobio, 13; 28100 Novara, Italy.)

1.2-ITA.744.0

Daughters of Charity of the Most Holy Annunciation of Ivrea

(Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Montanaro)

Founded 1744 in Italy at Montanaro Canavese (diocese of Ivrea) by Angela Re (1696-1768), her niece Francesca Re (1723-1794), and her cousin Maddalena Re (1726-1804), Antonia Maria Verna, and several other collaborators for parish ministry including Christian education of children, and care of the sick and poor in their homes. Some of the founders were Third Order Franciscans. Initially known as the Ritiro Daughters of Charity. From 1744-1779 the institute followed the rule of the Franciscan Third Order, but Cardinal Vittorio Amedeo delle Lanze retracted that and replaced it with the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul (whose Daughters were not yet in Italy). This resulted in an aggiornamento for this institute. In 1780 there was an attempt to unite with the Daughters of Charity in Paris, but this was interrupted by the French Revolution. Reverend Marcantonio Durando, C.M., (1801-1880) had a role in their spiritual formation. Subsequently some overtures were made with the Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception of Ivrea (see 1.2-ITA.828.11), but that did not come to fruition; became an autonomous diocesan institute in 1835. This institute conducts diverse pastoral ministries in a spirit of humility, simplicity, and charity. Vincent is co-patron of this institute of diocesan right, along with Saint Joseph and Saint Francis of Assisi.28 (Generalate: via Dante # 5; 10017 Montanaro; Turin, Italy.)

1.2-ITA.744.2

Sisters Ministers of the Sick and Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Grignasco

Established 1744 as a new diocesan institute in Novara, Italy, originally founded as a result of a bequest in 1740 from Giovanna Girolama Cavallotti Durio (1650-1740) for the support of charitable services to the poor in conjunction with the local church. This institute adopted the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul in 1748. It was suppressed in 1875 and restored in 1891 and later united with another diocesan community by the same name (of Prato Sesia, Novara) to form the Sisters of Charity under the patronage of Saint Vincent de Paul (see 4.1-ITA.939.22).

1.2-ITA.828.11

Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception of Ivrea

(Sisters of Ivrea)

Founded 1828 at Rivarolo Canavese in Turin, Italy, by the servant of God, Antonia Maria Verna (1773-1838), to educate poor girls and catechize children. The scripture passage “the charity of Christ urges us” (2 Corinthians 5:14) and its association with Saint Vincent’s legacy of charity inspired the founder to place the congregation under the patronage of Saint Vincent de Paul, as well as Saint Joseph. The sisters follow the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul who is patron of the congregation. The institute is known for the painting “The Immaculate [Virgin] of Miracles” (housed at Ivrea) which is reputed to have miraculous properties. Reverend Marcantonio Durando, C.M., (1801-1880), had some involvement with this institute and thought that Mother Verna wanted to unite with the Daughters of Charity in Paris, but that was not the case. Reverend Carlo Domenico Sicardi, C.M., (1730-1819, vicar general 1817-1819), had suggested such a union, as he also did, with the Sisters of Charity in Imola and Montanaro (see 2.2-ITA.800.2). Luigi Maria Pochettini (1782-1837), bishop of Ivrea (1824-1837), resolved the conflict by approving the institute as one of

Sisters of the Infant Mary of Saints Bartolomea Capitanio and Vincenza Gerosa

Founded 1832 at Lovere in Lombardy, Italy, by Saint Bartolomea Capitanio (1807-1833, canonized 1950) and Saint Vincenza Gerosa (1784-1847, canonized 1950), who had dedicated themselves to works of charity, under the guidance of Reverend Angelo Bosio. The institute used the motto: "Under the protection of the great apostle of Charity, Saint Vincent de Paul." The founders modeled their institute on the rules of the Sisters of Charity of Saint Joan Antida Thouret (see 2.2-FRA.799.11.22), which are essentially the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul. Their mission is charitable works of mercy, especially care of sick and the poor. In 1842 there was a miraculous manifestation of the Infant Mary to the institute, hence the popular origin of the title.31 (Generalate: via S. Sofia, 13; 20122 Milan, Italy.)

Sisters of Mercy of Verona

Founded 1840 at Verona, Italy, by Blessed Charles Steeb (1775-1856; beatified 1975) and Luigia Poloni (1802-1855), in religion Sister Vincenza Maria Poloni. Its spirituality was based on Saint Vincent de Paul, especially humility, simplicity, and charity. Their rule is based on that of Saint Vincent de Paul, particularly the end of the Institute: "to honor Our Lord Jesus Christ as source and model of all charity." The first superior assumed the name of "Vincent Mary." The sisters were instructed to serve the poor corporally and spiritually in any form of poverty. The Sisters of Charity of Vienna, based on Saint Vincent's daughters in Paris (see 1.2-AUS.832.1.11) influenced the early development of this institute.\textsuperscript{32} (Generalate: via Valverde, 24; 37123 Verona, Italy.)

1.2-ITA.880.0

\textit{Sisters, Servants of the Poor}

Founded 1880 at Palermo, Italy, by Blessed James Cusmano (1834-1888, beatified 1983) for service by sisters to the poor, the sick, the abandoned and all those in need in hospitals, homes for poor abandoned old people, and orphanages for boys and girls. Cusmano patterned his communities on the model developed by Vincent de Paul. This institute’s mission is two-fold: “to help the Poor by alleviating their sufferings so as to bring them closer to God and ... to make the rich more sensitive to the needs of the Poor thus enabling them to obtain the grace they need from God for their eternal salvation.” Saint Vincent is patron of this institute whose rule is based on his \textit{Common Rules}. Reverend Jean Baptiste Étienne, C.M., superior general of the Congregation of the Mission, affiliated this institute to the Congregation of the Mission and the Daughters of Charity in 1869.\textsuperscript{33} (Generalate: Via dell’ Imbrecciato, 103; 00149 Rome, Italy.)

\textit{Missionaries, Servants of the Poor}

Founded 1887 at Palermo, Italy, by Blessed James Cusmano (1834-1888, beatified 1983) for priests and brothers to serve the poor, the sick, and those in greatest need through the works of charity and by giving missions throughout the countryside. Patterned on the model developed by Vincent de Paul, this institute’s mission includes sensitizing the rich to the needs of the poor. Saint Vincent is patron of this institute whose original rule was based on his \textit{Common Rules} and whose spirit is articulated in their revised (1986) \textit{Constitutions}. It was affiliated to the family of Saint Vincent in 1869. The Congregation of the Mission was involved in the formation of its early members. In 1884 Cusmano also founded, the Brothers, Servants of the Poor which was integrated with this institute when it came into being.34 (Generalate: via della Pisana, 95; 00163 Rome, Italy.)

Sisters Ministers of the Sick and Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Prato-Sesia

Founded 1898 at Novara, Italy, as a diocesan institute by Reverend Cesare Arientata (1859-1879), spiritual director, who previously had the same role with the Sisters of Charity of Grignasco. This institute of diocesan right united with another diocesan institute by the same name to form the Sisters of Charity under the patronage of Saint Vincent de Paul (see 1.2-ITA.939.22).

Sisters of Charity under the Patronage of Saint Vincent de Paul

Established 1939 in Novara, Italy, as an amalgamated community (pontifical right) from two diocesan communities by the same name: the Sisters Ministers of the Sick and the Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of (1) Grignasco (Novara) (see 1.2-ITA.744.2) and (2) of Prato-Sesia (Novara) (see 1.2-ITA.898.2). Their mission includes education and homes for the elderly. (Generalate: Institute of the Sacred Heart; Via Solferino, 16; 28100 Novara, Italy.)

KOREA

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Suwon

Established 1965 in Suwon at Kyonggi-do, Korea, as a mission from the Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Paderborn in order to serve Christ in the poor and suffering through hospitals, orphanages, and other forms of pastoral ministry. The rule is based on the Common Rules of Vincent de Paul who is the patron of this institute of diocesan right which became autonomous in 1990. (See 1.2-GER.841.3.1.11F.) (Generalate: P.O. MEXICO

1.2-MEX.884.0

Sisters of the Poor, Servants of the Sacred Heart of Jesus

Founded 1884 by Bishop José María Cázares y Martínez (1832-1909) at Zamora in Michoacán, Mexico, to serve the poor and to promote the cause of women and public health, especially through parish based schools and clinics. Substantially adopted the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. A former Daughter of Charity, Sister Margarita Gómez formed the first sisters in the Vincentian tradition. Vincent de Paul is secondary patron of the congregation. Received pontifical approval in 1931.³⁸ (Generalate: Dr. Verduzco 378 Sur; 59600 Zamora, Michoacán, Mexico.)

THE NETHERLANDS

1.2-NTH.832.11

Sisters of Charity of Our Lady, Mother of Mercy

Founded 1832 at Tilburg, The Netherlands, by Reverend Johannes Zwijsen (1794-1877), (later bishop of ‘s Hertogenbosch and archbishop of Utrecht) and Michaël Leysen (1779-1862) for the education of poor children. Vincent de Paul is patron of the congregation and his writings and teachings are recommended for spiritual reading. The rule is based on that of Saint Vincent de Paul via that of Clement Droste zu Vischering (1773-1845), archbishop of Cologne and vicar general of Münster. Zwijsen also gave “familiar discourses” like Vincent’s conferences to the Daughters of Charity. (See 4.1-NTH.844.0. and 4.1-USA.970.11.1.2)³⁹ (Generalate: Hintarmerstraat 164; 5211 MV ‘s Hertogenbosch, The Netherlands.)

1.2-NTH.836.11
Sisters of Charity of Jesus and Mary
(Sisters of Charity of Jesus and Mary, Mother of Good Succor)

Founded 1836 by Reverend Anthony van Erp (1779-1861) at Schijndel, The Netherlands, with the mission of personal sanctification by serving the neighbor under the motto of "work and pray." With the collaboration of Ann Marie de Bref (1812-1845), the first sisters were formed at Tilberg and followed their rule (see 1.2-NTH.832.11). Inspired by Vincent de Paul as patron and his spirit of humility, simplicity, and charity. The founder chose the Common Rules of Saint Vincent because he wanted the sisters to bring love and justice to the poor. The constitutions of this institute contain quotes of Vincent de Paul. (See also 1.2-IDO.990.1.)

PORTUGAL

1.2-POR.822.2
Servants of the Poor

Traces its roots to 1810 when the first Daughters of Charity arrived to open a house in Lisbon, Portugal. Due to the political situation in the country, they were soon cut off from Paris. The sisters remained at their missions and continued to follow the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity. In 1831 a royal edict abolished and expelled religious communities from Portugal, except for this one linked to the Daughters of Charity of Barcelona, Spain. Beginning in 1856, cholera and yellow fever epidemics arose in Portugal and the government petitioned Paris for assistance. Sent by Reverend Jean Baptiste Étienne, C.M., (1801-1874, superior general 1843-1874), the first relief group arrived in 1857 with Reverend Eugène Emile Miel, C.M., (1822-1896). At that time a delegation of members from this institute petitioned Étienne for reunification and in 1857 the institute united with the Daughters of Charity of Paris and was placed under the direction of

ROMANIA

1.2-ROM.842.3.1.11

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Satu-Mare
(Sisters of Mercy of Saint Vincent de Paul or Sisters of Mercy, Daughters of Christian Charity)

Founded 1842 by Bishop John Ham (1781-1804) in Satu-Mare (then Austria-Hungary, now Romania) for diverse apostolic and charitable services because of his concern for the poor, the sick, the neglected, and the education of youth. He sent some candidates to Vienna (then in Austria-Hungary) for religious formation by the sisters at Gumpendorf, who observed the rule of Saint Vincent whom Ham named as patron of his institute. He also developed a rule based on the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. After World War I, the province of Hungary of this diocesan institute divided into three provinces: Slovakia, Romania, and Hungary. A mission to the United States of America in 1902 later resulted in the establishment (1951) of the Vincentian Sisters of Charity of Pittsburgh and subsequently Bedford. (See 1.2-USA.902.1.11F and 1.2-USA.928.1F.) See also Sisters of Char-

In 1862, because of the political climate at that time, Étienne recalled the sisters, leaving Miel to run the French hospital in Lisbon with a staff of just one priest and brother. Miel was able to persuade sisters from different houses to come and assist the Lisbon relief effort. Some sisters came from Funchal (1878) and Bemfica (1877). By 6 August 1881 the province of Portugal was erected. In October 1910 a republic replaced the monarchy in Portugal and non-Portuguese sisters had to leave the country. However, the sisters in Portugal continued living in community. The Company of the Daughters of Charity did not return to Portugal until after the Second World War. Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Majorca

Founded 1798 at Felanitx on Majorca, Spain, by Reverend Antonio Roig y Rexarch (1750-1808), who lived Vincentian spirituality himself. He admired the work of the Vincentians and was greatly influenced by them. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute. They follow the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. In 1890, five additional local "Sisterhoods of Charity" founded on the island of Majorca united with this institute. The institute promotes devotion to the Miraculous Medal. This was the first active community founded in Spain.\textsuperscript{44} (Generalate: Calle Ausias March, 25/2-2A; 07003 Palma de Mallorca, Spain.)

Sisters of Charity of Valls

Founded 1800 at Valls, Spain, by Reverend Jaime Cesat with the approval of Francisco Armana (1718-1803), archbishop of Tarragona (1785-1803), and the participation of three young women who felt called to begin a free school for little girls. A new hospital was also being established at Valls, and the Daughters of Charity were sought but unavailable. So, a new institute was formed to meet the need. This institute is based on the Common Rules of Saint Vincent with simple annual vows (see 1.2-SPA.808.1).\textsuperscript{45}

Sisters of Charity of Saint Ann

Founded 1805 at Saragossa, Spain, by the servant of God, María Rafols Bruna (1781-1853), eleven companions from the hospital of Our Lady of Grace, and Reverend Juan Bonal (1770-1829). Traces its roots to a 1792 institute known as the Sisters of Charity of Saragossa founded by the administrative board of the hospital of Our Lady of Grace to minister to the sick since the Daughters of Charity were not available. Bonal knew the Daughters of Charity and gave their Common Rules to this institute. The institute succeeded and expanded despite internal tensions about uniting with the Daughters of Charity of Paris. This was the first religious institute for charity founded in Spain.46 (Generalate: Calle Madre M. Rafols, 13; 50004 Saragossa, Spain.)

Sisters of Charity of Cervera

Founded 1808 at Cervera, Spain, by three Sisters of Charity of Valls whom Reverend Jaime Cesat intended to establish as Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul in order to manage the Castelltort Hospital there. Two of these founding members were: Sister Ana María Janer y Anglarill (1800-1885) and Sister Teresa Solá.47 The board’s initial request was made in 1805. However, an official notation by the Marquess de Campany indicated that the French Daughters of Charity had been established at Valls in 1800. In 1829 the Sisters of Charity of Cervera founded a school for young children at Guisona. This institute followed the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. (See 1.2-SPA.800.)48

Congregation of the Sisters of Our Lady of Consolation of Tortosa

Founded 1857 at Jesús barrio in Tortosa, Spain, by Blessed María Rosa Molas y Vallvé (1815-1876, beatified 1977), who entered (1841) the break-away group (Sisterhood of Charity led by Luisa Estivill, a former Daughter of Charity) known as the Corporation of the Daughters of Charity prior to its reunification with Paris after the French 47Janer is also spelled Jané.

Revolution. She remained with this group for eight years (see 2.2-SPA.841.1.11.2). Molas was sent by Estivill to oversee the reopening at Tortosa in Tarragona of the House of Mercy which was in disarray since the withdrawal in 1831 of the French Daughters of Charity who founded it in 1796. The sisters arrived in Tortosa in 1849; the apostolate of education was begun in 1851 and a hospital in 1852. Each expansion brought additional personnel from the Sisterhood of Charity at Reus. The definitive split seems to have been caused by the growth at Tortosa and the desire of these sisters to regularize their canonical situation. Purpose is to educate youth and serve the poor. Sister María Rosa had been a Daughter of Charity in Reus. This diocesan institute follows the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. 49 (Generalate: via Aurelia 300; 00165 Rome, Italy.)

1.2-SPA.899.2.1

Missionary Daughters of the Heart of Mary
(Institute of Charity of the Immaculate Heart of Mary; Daughters of Charity, Daughters of the Heart of Mary)

Founded 1899 by Marí Teresa Güell y Puig (1848-1921) at Cervera, Spain. Güell initially had been professed (1873) in the Sisters of Charity of Cervera (see 1.2-SPA.800.11 and 1.2-SPA.808.1) which underwent internal struggles (bishop, administrators and religious) plus many changes, including a brief merger (1882) with the Institute of the Holy Family of Urgel (see 4.1-SPA.860.1). Güell withdrew to launch her new foundation, based on the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. It is an institute of diocesan right. 50 (Generalate: Calle Mayor, 109; Cervera, Lérida, Spain.)

UNITED STATES

Sisters of Charity of Saint Joseph's
(The American Sisters of Charity)

Founded 1809 at Emmitsburg in Maryland, United States, by Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton (1774-1821, canonized 1975). The foundation was influenced by French Sulpician priests who had known the Daughters of Charity in France. Reverend Benedict Joseph Flaget, S.S., (1763-1850, bishop of Bardstown, Kentucky, 1808-1848) obtained a handwritten copy of the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity which Mother Seton had adapted. When the Sulpicians received an order that they must return to their principal work, conducting seminaries, Reverend Louis Deluol, S.S., (superior, 1826-1830; 1841-1849) and the sisters' council at Saint Joseph's began negotiations to unite with the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul in France. In 1850 the sisters united with the Daughters of Charity of Paris (1.1-FRA.633.22). The Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul (see 1.2-USA.846.1.11.3F) and the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati (see 1.2-USA.852.3F) developed directly from the Emmitsburg foundation. The institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.\(^{51}\) (Provincialate: Saint Joseph's Provincial House, 333 South Seton Avenue, Emmitsburg, Maryland 21727-9297, USA.)

Sisters of Charity of Nazareth

Established 1812 at Nazareth in Kentucky, United States, by Reverend John Baptist David, S.S., (1761-1841, second bishop of Bardstown, Kentucky, 1832-1833) and cofounder Mother Catherine Spalding (1793-1858, superior 1813-1819; 1824-1831; 1838-1844; 1850-1856). The original purpose was to help care for the numerous Catholic families on the frontier. Religious education of the children was also a top priority. Received a handwritten copy made by Reverend Simon Bruté, S.S., (1779-1839, later first bishop of Vincennes, Indiana, 1834-1839), of the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul from Emmitsburg. Six sisters withdrew in 1851 to establish a new institute in Nashville, Tennessee; ultimately this became the Sisters of Charity of Leavenworth, Kansas (see 1.2-USA.858.1F). Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute, and David recommended his spirit of humility, simplicity, and charity. It is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.\(^{52}\) (Generalate: PO Box 172; Nazareth, Kentucky 40048, USA.)

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul

Originated in the 1809 foundation by Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton and began 1817 in New York City, New York in the United States, as a mission from Emmitsburg to educate and care for children and other works of charity. Became autonomous from Emmitsburg in 1846 (see 1.2-USA.809.11.2F) under the sponsorship of Bishop John Hughes of New York (1797-1864) with Mother Elizabeth Boyle (1888-1861, superior 1846-1849) as the first superior. She had been a companion of Mother Seton and was formed by her in the Emmitsburg community. It follows the Common Rules of Saint Vincent from Emmitsburg with the addition that care of male orphans was permitted. Assisted in establishing the Sisters of Charity of Saint Elizabeth (see 1.2-USA.859.3F), the Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Halifax (see 1.2-CAN.856.3F) and the Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception (see 1.2-CAN.854.1.11.3F). This institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.53 (Generalate: Sisters of Charity Center; 6301 Riverdale Avenue; Bronx, New York 10471, USA.)

1.2-USA.829.11F

Sisters of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy

Established 1829 at Charleston in South Carolina, United States, by Bishop John England (1786-1842) to teach young girls, instruct African-American slaves, and care for the sick and infirm. Bishop England obtained the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul, and his successor, Bishop Ignatius Reynolds (1798-1855), modified them according to England’s recommendations for this institute of diocesan right. Reynolds had served as chaplain and second superior of the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth (1833-1835). The institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation. Two local foundations became autonomous and later joined the Sisters of Mercy (Savannah, 1845; Wilmington, 1869).54 (Generalate: PO Box 12410; 424 Fort Johnson Road; Charleston, South Carolina 29422, USA.)

Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati

Originated in the 1809 foundation by Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton and began 1829 at Cincinnati, Ohio, United States, as a mission from Emmitsburg (see 1.2-USA.809.11.2F). In 1852 became an independent institute under Archbishop John Baptist Purcell (1800-1883). Mother Margaret Cecilia George (1787-1868) was the first superior (1853-1859). She had been a companion of Mother Seton and was formed by her in the Emmitsburg community. They retained the Common Rules of Saint Vincent (from Emmitsburg) but included the care of male orphans. Assisted with the establishment of the Sisters of Charity of Saint Elizabeth (see 1.2-USA.859.3F) and the Sisters of Charity of Seton Hill (see 2.1-USA.870.3F). The institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.55 (Generalate: 5900 Delhi Road; Mount Saint Joseph, Ohio 45051, USA.)

1.2-USA.858.1F

Sisters of Charity of Leavenworth

Began 1858 at Nashville, Tennessee, United States, under Bishop Pius Miles, O.P., (1791-1860) as a mission of the Sisters of Charity of Nashville, Tennessee, who had branched off from the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth, Kentucky. The institute became independent in 1870. The founding sisters were originally Sisters of Charity of Nazareth (see 1.2-USA.812.11F). Mother Xavier Ross (1813-1895) was the first superior (1858-1862; 1865-1877). The institute received the Common Rules of Saint Vincent de Paul from Emmitsburg, with the American modifications, through Bishop John Baptist Purcell of Cincinnati. The institute relocated in Leavenworth, Kansas, at the invitation of Bishop John Baptist Miège, S.J., (1815-1884) vicar apostolic of Indian Territory, Kansas. Vincent de Paul is their patron. This institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.56 (Generalate: 4200 South Fourth Street; Leavenworth, Kansas 66048-5054, USA.)

1.2-USA.859.3F

Sisters of Charity of Saint Elizabeth

Founded 1859 at Newark, New Jersey, United States, by the half-nephew of Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton (Mother Seton), Bishop James Roosevelt Bayley (1814-1877). The first novices were trained by the Sisters of Charity in Cincinnati (see 1.2-USA.852.3F) under the direction of Sister Margaret George, who had lived with Mother Seton. The New York community, Sisters of Charity (see 1.2-USA.846.1.11.3F), at Mount-Saint-Vincent-on-the-Hudson, sent Sister M. Xaxier Mehegan (1825-1915, superior 1859-1915) and Sister M. Catherine Nevin to organize the new institute which they later opted to join when it became autonomous and of diocesan right (1859). The institute follows the Common Rules of Saint Vincent with the American modifications. The institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.57 (Generalate: PO Box 476; Convent Station, New Jersey 07961-0476, USA.)

1.2-USA.892.1

Sisters of Providence of Holyoke

Began 1873 at Holyoke, Massachusetts, United States, as a mission of the Sisters of Providence of Saint Vincent de Paul of Kingston, Ontario, Canada, under the leadership of Sister Catherine Horan

Mother Margaret Cecelia George

(1850-1943). Became independent in 1892 as a diocesan institute to administer schools, hospitals, assist poor and destitute people, and prepare young women for the order.58 (See 1.2-CAN.861.3.11.1) (Generalate: Convent of Our Lady of Victory; Holyoke, Massachusetts 01040, USA.)

Vincentian Sisters of Charity of Pittsburgh

Established 1902 at Braddock, Pennsylvania, United States, as a foundation from the Sisters of Charity of Satu-Mare, Romania, by Mother Emerentiana Handlovits (1869-1935, superior 1902-1935) to serve immigrant peoples from what was then considered as Eastern Europe (now Central Europe). Became autonomous in 1915 and received pontifical status in 1951. Traces its roots through the Sisters of Charity of Satu-Mare (1842), Vienna (1832), Zams (1823), and ultimately Strasbourg.59 (See 1.2-ROM.842.3.1.11 and 1.2-AUS.832.1.11.) John Francis Regis Canevin (1852-1927), bishop of Pittsburgh, renamed this institute with its current title since Mother Seton’s Sisters of Charity were already in the same diocese. The institute is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation. (See 1.2-USA928.1F.)60 (Generalate: 8200 McKnight Road, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15237, USA.)

Vincentian Sisters of Charity of Bedford

Established 1928 at Bedford in Ohio, United States, by Joseph Schrembs (1866-1945), bishop of Cleveland, to minister to Slovak immigrants in that diocese with the intention of starting a new province of the institute. Sister Mary John Berchmans was the first superior. Became autonomous from Pittsburgh in 1939 as an institute of diocesan right. (See 1.2-USA.902.1.11F and 1.2-ROM.842.3.1.11.) It is a member of the Elizabeth Seton Federation.61 (Generalate: 1160 Broadway, Bedford, Ohio USA 44146-4593, USA.)

The following are additional institutes which adapted or adopted the Common Rules of Saint Vincent and were established by Vincentians priests or Daughters of Charity. See Part II for the discussion of these institutes included in Criteria 2.1 and 2.2.

59In Europe many bishops used the Common Rules of Saint Vincent as a model when drafting a rule of life for the new institutes that they founded to serve in their dioceses.

Visitation of Holy Mary

Founded 1610 at Annecy in Savoy, now part of France, by Saint Francis de Sales (1567-1622, canonized 1665) and Saint Jane Frances de Chantal, (1572-1641, canonized 1767) for whom Vincent de Paul was spiritual director for almost twenty years. From 1622 (before the death of de Sales) to shortly before 1660 when he died, Vincent de Paul was ecclesiastical superior of the first monastery of the Visitation in the archdiocese of Paris. Later he would also become superior of the second, then the third in that archdiocese. The Visitandines have maintained a great devotion to Vincent and read his works. In 1629, through Vincent de Paul’s efforts, the Visitandines assumed responsibility for the Daughters of Saint Magdalen (see 1.3-FRA.629.2).

\textsuperscript{62}May also be written as Kian.

Augustinians of Charity of Notre Dame
(Augustinian Nursing Sisters of Hôtel-Dieu)

Instituted 1628 at Paris, France, by Geneviève Bouquet (Mother Frances of the Cross) as a reformation of an earlier foundation. Their constitutions were written and revised under the direction of Saint Vincent and approved by Pope Urban VIII in 1628. The Augustinian Nursing Sisters of Hôtel-Dieu made a fourth vow “of service to the sick poor all the days of my life.”

Daughters of Saint Magdalen

Founded 1629 at Paris, France, and placed under the guardianship of the Visitation (1629-1671) (see 1.3-FRA.610.2) who supplied the first officers including the first superior, Mother Anne Marie Bollain, V.S.M. Penitent women desirous of leading a life of virtue as religious comprised the institute, which was housed in the convent of Saint Mary Magdalen on the advice of Saint Vincent de Paul. Two more convents were opened subsequently in Rouen and Bordeaux. Urban VIII approved the institute in 1631.

Religious Hospitallers of Saint Joseph

Founded 1636 in France by Jérôme Royer de la Dauversière (1597-1659) in collaboration with Marie de La Ferre (1592-1652) in the diocese of Angers at La Flèche (Sarthe) in order to serve the sick poor without a cloister or solemn vows. The rule of Vincent de Paul for his Daughters inspired Royer regarding the first constitutions (1643) he drafted for his institute. Three sisters went to Canada (1659) during the lifetime of Saint Vincent de Paul. This institute derived its original inspiration from Vincent whom Royer had consulted about its establishment. The first articles of its constitutions of 1643 resembled the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity concerning the care of the sick poor. Based at the Hôtel-Dieu of Montreal, their mission became to honor the Holy Family and to evangelize Canada during its colonization. Several distinct communities, especially in Canada, have developed from this root and in 1965 all branches of the institute united.\textsuperscript{66}

Sisters of Saint Agnes

Founded 1636 at Arras, France, by Mademoiselle Jeanne Biscot for social ministry, the care of orphans, and nursing the sick. Vincent de Paul successfully advocated on behalf of this institute to obtain letters patent conveying royal approbation from Queen Anne of Austria. Subsequently the Sisters of Saint Agnes were absorbed into the institute known as Servants of Marie de Anglet. 67

Society of Saint Sulpice

(Priests of the Clergy or Sulpicians)

Founded 1641 at Paris, France, by Jean Jacques Olier (1608-1657) in order to staff a seminary which would be a "school of religious of those especially who will have the care of souls." He had given several ordination retreats at Saint Lazare. Saint Vincent was his spiritual director for four years, and they were associates both in the Company of the Blessed Sacrament and the Tuesday Conferences. Vincent collaborated with Olier and lent him Reverend Antoine Portail, C.M., (1590-1660), and Reverend Antoine Lucas, C.M., (1600-1656), to assist with early missions of the Sulpicians. Olier often told his confrères: "Monsieur Vincent is our father." 68 (Generalate: 6, rue de Regard; 75006 Paris, France.)

1.3-FRA.641.2.11

Daughters of Providence

(Order of the Daughters of Saint Anne)

Developed in 1641 from the house of refuge called Providence established 1630 in Paris, France, by Venerable Marie de Lumague, Mademoiselle Pollalion (1599-1657), with the help of Saint Vincent de Paul, and with the subsequent involvement of Reverend Jean Antoine

Le Vachet, S.S., (1603-1681). Mademoiselle Pollalion was one of the original Ladies of Charity at Hôtel-Dieu in Paris. As the ecclesiastical superior until 1657, Vincent took an active interest in the development of this new religious community. He helped to arrange for the formulation of its rule, its expansion, and its approval (1647) by the archbishop of Paris (Jean François de Gondi), Louis XIII, and subsequently by Louis XIV through Queen Anne of Austria. Madame Miramion assumed the government of this institute after the death of their founder. Subsequently, at least eighteen communities known as the Sisters of Providence developed in France. This institute constitutes the nucleus of the Sisters of Christian Union. (Generalate: 9, rue de la Mauvinière; 86034 Poitiers, France.)

1.3-FRA.662.22

Daughters of the Holy Family

Founded 1662 at Paris, France, by Marie Bonneau, Madame de Miramion (1629-1696), a Lady of Charity, in order to teach little girls and help the poor. Vincent de Paul drew up the institute's rules but died before the work was actually begun. Miramion, at the request of her director, Reverend Hippolyte Féret (parish priest of Saint Nicolas du Chardonnet and superior of the Daughters of Saint Geneviève, established thirty years previously by Mademoiselle de Blosset) consented to its merger with the latter community. The resulting institute thrived until the French Revolution and reflected its Vincentian roots.

70The Community of Christian Union was established 1652 at Paris (France) by Reverend Jean Antoine Le Vachet (1603-1681) and his sister Mademoiselle Anna de Croze to serve Protestant converts and newly baptized Catholics. This institute evolved from the 1641 foundation of the Daughters of Providence instituted in Paris by Venerable Marie Lumague and Madame Pollalion, with the help of Saint Vincent. The Daughters of Providence became the nucleus of this diocesan institute of Christian Union, later called Community of Christian Union of Saint-Chaumont (1652, Poitiers) and then divided in two parts: (1) Fontenay-le-Comte (Vendée, 1680) and (2) Poitiers (Vienne). The 1680 branch at Fontenay-le-Comte was the foundation of Mademoiselle Marie-Barnabée Brisson. \textit{Sisters of the Most Blessed Sacrament and of Charity of Bourges}

Founded 1671 at Montoire-sur-le-Loir, France, by the Reverend Antoine Moreau (1625-1702). The founder had sought Daughters of Charity from Vincent de Paul who was unable to satisfy his request.

Saint Vincent then advised Moreau to establish his own community to combat Jansenism and Protestantism. Members strive to acquire humility, simplicity, and charity. This is an institute of diocesan right.

BELGIUM

2.1-BEL.926.0

Society of Auxiliaries of the Missions

Founded 1926 at Louvain, Belgium, by Reverend Vincent Lebbe, C.M., (1877-1940), with the collaboration of Reverend Andrew Boland (1891-1955, superior 1930-1947) as an institute of diocesan right to support missionary efforts (especially in China) for native vocations. The Samist vocation envisions an alliance of perfect missionary charity with the humility to renounce any vestiges of European superiority. (See 2.1-CHI.928.0 and 2.1-CHI.929.0.)

(Generalate: 244 Chaussée de Waterloo; 1060 Brussels, Belgium.)

Institute of Daughters of Mary, Servants of Charity

Founded 1924 at Recife, Brazil, by Reverend José Venâncio de Melo, C.M.,74 (1866-1938), and María Mercedes de Rocha Carvalho to serve the poorest of the poor in a spirit of love and thirst for justice in the Vincentian tradition. Became an institute of women from the lay Company of Charity (see L-2.1-BRA.919.0) that subsequently included men and women. It later developed into an institute of diocesan right for women. Its rule is based on the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity.75 (Generalate: Rua José de Alencar, 611, Boa Vista, Recife, Brazil.)

74Also spelled de Mello.

2.1-CHI.750.0

Chinese Daughters of Charity of Tonkin

Founded c.1750 by Reverend Paul Sou, C.M., (c.1692-c.1767), at Tonkin (Chungqing), China, modeled on the mission, spirit, and Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity of Paris. Sou was one of the first two Chinese Vincentians.⁷⁷

2.1-CHI.872.11.3

Religious of Saint Joseph of Peking

Founded 1872 for native vocations at the church named Nan-Tang, a mission of Peking (Beijing), China, by Bishop Louis Gabriel Delaplace,
C.M., (1820-1884), vicar apostolic of Tche-ly (Chihli) and bishop of Peking (1870-1884). This institute was established at Saint Vincent Hospital of the Daughters of Charity who educated the founding sisters. The primary apostolate was religious education and subsequently dispensaries. This institute of diocesan right for native sisters became a prototype in China for evangelization by the Vincentian missionaries. Branches were subsequently established in Yungping (Yongping) (1901); Paoting (Baoding) (1910); Tiensien (Tianjin) (1912); Suanhwa (1926); Li-Shien (Lizhen) (1928), the latter by Melchior Souen, C.M., (called in Chinese Souen-te-chen, 1869-1951), vicar apostolic of Ngan-kouo, with the support of the foundation at Peking. (See 2.1-CHI.901.1.)

2.1-CHI.880.0

Congregation of Saint Joseph of Tcheng-Ting-Fu
(Society of Saint Joseph)

Founded 1880 for native vocations at Tcheng-Ting-Fu (Cheng-ting), China, by François Tagliabue, C.M., (1822-1890), bishop of Tcheng-Ting-Fu (1870-1884). Initially it was conceived as an auxiliary to the local apostolate of the Daughters of Charity but soon it became independent. This institute was founded in consultation with Louis Gabriel Delaplace, C.M., (bishop of Peking 1870-1884), and was modeled on the Daughters of Charity, although the sisters renewed their simple vows on March 19 each year. The primary works included orphanages, religious education, and care of the elderly. (See 2.1-CHI.872.11.3)."}

2.1-CHI.892.0

Virgins of Purgatory
(Association of Christian Virgins; Daughters of Purgatory or Helpers of the Souls in Purgatory)

Founded 1892 at Ning-po, China, by Reverend Bernard Ibarruty, C.M., (1858-1926), and Bishop Paul Marie Reynaud, C.M., (1854-1926), titular bishop of Fusulan and vicar apostolic of Tche-kiang (Zhejiang Sheng), as a native diocesan Chinese institute for education, catechetics, and special prayers for the souls in purgatory. The sisters made three simple vows, renewable 25 January, the foundation date of the institute. 81

Also spelled Ibarsutry. Biographical dates given as 1859-1927 in Les Lazaristes en Chine, 100.

2.1-CHI.895.0

Brothers of Saint Paul
(Society of Saint Paul or Paulists)

Founded 1895 at Tcheng-Ting-Fu (Cheng-ting), China, by Reverend Alfonso Maria Morelli, C.M., (1857-1941), with the approval of Jules Bruguière, C.M., (1851-1906), titular bishop of Cina and vicar apostolic of southwestern Tche-ly (Chihli), as an institute of diocesan right. Reverend Vincent Tcheng, C.M., (1864-1913), also helped to organize this institute. Its mission was to collaborate with the Vincentian missionaries in evangelization of the unbaptized and in supporting the newly baptized.83

2.1-CHI.897.11

Daughters of Saint Anne

Founded 1897 by Reverend Antonio Canduglia, C.M., (b. 1861, killed 1907 in the Boxer Rebellion) at Ta-wo-li, in Kiangsi (Jiangsi), China, with the approval of Bishop Auguste Coqset, C.M., (1847-1917), vicar apostolic of southern Kiangsi. Their mission included catechetical and pastoral activities. Modeled on the Daughters of Charity of Paris, the sisters made simple, annual vows and wore the common dress of those whom they served. When the vicariate of Kiangsi was divided (1920) into Chian (Ji'an) and Kanchow (Kanchou), Bishop Nicolas Ciceri, C.M., (1854-1932), vicar apostolic of Kiangsi, divided the congregation, resulting in two autonomous branches.84

2.1-CHI.901.1

Sisters of the Immaculate Conception
(The Mariales)

Founded 1901 at Yungping (Yongping), China, by Bishop Ernest François Geurts, C.M., (1862-1940), for native vocations to do pastoral ministry, especially religious education and care of orphans. The founding sisters were four Sisters of Saint Joseph from Peking (see 2.1-CHI.872.11). Sister Marie Wang was the first superior general.85

Daughters of Saint Anne of Chian

Established 1920 at Chian (Ji’an), China, by Bishop Nicolas Ciceri, C.M., (1854-1932), who divided the parent congregation (see 2.1-CHI.897.11) when the vicariate of Kiangsi (Jiangsi) was divided into Chian (Ji’an) and Kanchow (Kanchou). The original foundation 1897 by Reverend Antonio Canduglia, C.M., (1861-1907), was made at Tawoly (Dawanli), Kiangsi (Jiangsi) with the approval of Bishop Auguste Coqset, C.M., (1847-1917). Their mission included catechetical and pastoral activities. Modeled on the Daughters of Charity of Paris, the sisters made simple, annual vows and wore the common dress of those whom they served.*

Daughters of Saint Anne of Kanchow

Established 1920 at Kanchow (Kanchou), China, by Bishop Nicolas Ciceri, C.M., (1854-1932), who divided the parent congregation (see 2.1-CHI.897.11) when the vicariate of Kiangsi (Jiangsi) was divided into Chian (Ji’an) and Kanchow (Kanchou). Original foundation 1897 by Reverend Antonio Canduglia, C.M., (1861-1907), at Tawoly (Dawanli), Kiangsi (Jiangsi) with the approval of Bishop Auguste Coqset, C.M., (1847-1917), then titular bishop of Cardica and vicar apostolic of southern Kiangsi. Their mission included catechetical and pastoral activities. Modeled on the Daughters of Charity of Paris, the sisters made simple, annual vows and wore the common dress of those whom they served.*

Congregation of Saint John the Baptist

(Little Brothers of Saint John the Baptist)

Founded 1928 at Ngan-Kouo (Hankou), China, in Ho-pei (Hebei) by Reverend Vincent Lebbe, C.M., (1877-1940), in collaboration with Reverend Melchior Souen, C.M., (1869-1951), bishop of Ngan-Kouo (Hankou) in order to establish native Chinese clergy. The institute was completely inculturated among the people combining a quasi-Trappist monastic community life with apostolic activity. Lebbe obtained Chinese citizenship and had to choose between the Vincentians and his new institute. Ultimately Lebbe renounced his membership in the Congregation of the Mission (1933) and died as a Little Brother of Saint John the Baptist. In later years, the founder signed his name Vincent Lei but was also known by his Chinese name Lei-Ming-Yuan meaning "Thunder in the Distance." The cause for Lebbe's beatification has been introduced in Rome. His approach to evangelization contrasted sharply with that employed by European missionaries of his time and generated a great amount of criticism. Lebbe's techniques emphasized indigenization and marked him as a man much ahead of his time. Lebbe's life is chronicled in Thunder at a Distance by Jacques Leclercq. When China fell to the communists, members of this diocesan institute were forced to disperse, but some escaped and regrouped in Hong Kong and formed anew there. There are also two related lay groups founded in Belgium. (See 2.1-BEL.926.0 and 2.1-CHI.929.0.)

2.1-CHI.929.0

Little Sisters of Saint Theresa of the Child Jesus

(Thérésiennes)

Founded 1929 at Ngan-Kouo (Hankou), China, in Ho-pei (Hebei) for native vocations by Reverend Vincent Lebbe, C.M., (1877-1940), of Belgium with the authorization of Reverend Melchior Souen, C.M., (1869-1951), vicar apostolic, for pastoral ministry combined with contemplative spirituality in community. Their spirit is based on renunciation, charity, joy, and suffering following the "little way" of Saint Theresa of Lisieux emphasizing Marian devotion as an avenue to union with Christ. Members fled to Taiwan during the Communist Revolution in China and the institute was reestablished at Hsinchuang as a diocesan institute of Taipei. (See 2.1-CHI.928.0) (Generalate: 2 Lane 13, Taili; Taishan, Taipei Hsien 243; Taiwan, ROC.)
Reverend Antoine Cotta, C.M., and Reverend Vincent Lebbe, C.M.

ETHIOPIA

2.1-ETH.885.0
Sisters of the Holy Heart of Mary

Founded 1885 at Keren (Cheren), Eritrea, Ethiopia, by Bishop Jean Marcel Touvier, C.M., (1825-1888), bishop of Olena, and Sister Louise Lequette, D.C., (1818-1897, superioress general 1872-1878) for native vocations to assist the Daughters of Charity in their service of the poor. This institute taught young girls and served in parish ministry. Members were not required to live in common, but made a vow of virginity.92

Sisters of the Holy Family of Sedan
(Daughters of the Charity Workshop)

Founded 1695 at Sedan, France, in the diocese of Reims by Reverend Claude Huchon, C.M., (1655-1726), as a congregation of diocesan right following the rule of the Third Order of Saint Dominic. The primary apostolate was the education of young ladies in sewing and lacemaking. The institute was not reconstituted after the French Revolution. Huchon became assistant superior general (1703-1711) after leaving Sedan.93

2.1-FRA.715.0

Religious of the Most Blessed Sacrament
(Sisters of Calvary)

Founded in 1715 at Boucieu-le-Roy, France, by Reverend Pierre Vigne (1670-1740), former member of the Congregation of the Mission, in collaboration with Marguerite de Nozières for the instruction and education of youth and care of the sick poor. This diocesan institute has been known by its present title since 1727 but has had other names: Sisters of Calvary (1715-1721); Sisters of Our Lady of Calvary of Perpetual Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament (1722-1727).94 (Generalate: 113, Avenue Victor-Hugo; 26000 Valence, France.)

2.1-FRA.799.0

Sisters of Reparation of the Sacred Heart of Jesus (Sisters of the Union of the Sacred Heart of Jesus of Bordeaux)

Founded 1799 at Bordeaux, France, by Reverend Peter Vincent Wlechmans, C.M., (1755-1831), and Reverend Michael Wuillerme who had been a member of the Congregation of the Mission prior to the French Revolution. Mademoiselle Marie Eulalie Fatin (1773-1855) was the first to join this new institute whose purpose was to adore the Sacred Heart and promote Christian education. The sisters of this diocesan institute existed on alms and lived very poorly.95 (Generalate: Islas Cies 22; 5º Madrid 28034, Spain.)

2.1-FRA.820.11

and Mother Alphonsa Cavin Millot (1816-1868). Batlle drafted the first rule. Vincentian tradition permeates this institute through its adaptation of Vincent de Paul's Common Rules and its inclusion of Vincentian spirituality. The institute opened a house at Mataró in Spain in 1846 and developed ministries there. (See 2.1-SPA.850.1.)96

Congregation of the Sisters of Christ in Gethsemani
(Sisters of the Holy Agony of Our Lord Jesus Christ)

Cofounded 1864 by Reverend Antoine Hippolyte Nicolle, C.M., (1817-1890), at Valfleury (Loire), France, and Jean Lepreux (who withdrew in 1866) in collaboration with Lucie Antonia Berlier (1844-1889). After a refounding in 1867, the institute refocused its purpose to minister to the sick, primarily to the terminally ill and dying, especially in their homes, in order to live out the Marian message (1846) in the Red Scapular: "The World is lost because it does not think of the Passion of Jesus Christ; do all you can to help them think of it; do all you can so it may be saved." Shortly after their foundation, the institute was placed under the jurisdiction of the archbishop of Albi, the diocese where their motherhouse was located in Mazamet. In 1870 it was approved by Pius IX. Nicolle was named provincial of the Paris province of the Congregation of the Mission in 1870.\(^96\) (Generalate: 59, rue Jean-Jaurès; 42800 Rive-de-Gier [Loire], France.)

Little Sisters of the Miraculous Medal

(Little Sisters of Saint Georges de l’Isle)

Founded 1892 at l’Isle, France, by Reverend Aumonier Pivert, first chaplain of the Hospice of Saint Georges of l’Isle, with the collaboration of Reverend Jean Galineau, C.M., (1840-1901), and Reverend Henri Grenier, C.M., (1835-1912), who provided the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. Reverend Henri Morlhon, C.M., (1840-1927), visitor of the province of Champagne (1895-1903), provided them with direction and great support for eighteen years. Their purpose was to assist the Daughters of Charity at the hospital of Saint Georges and also for personal sanctification. The new community included women whose health or other factors prohibited them from entering existing congregations. In 1926 the institute became affiliated with the Association of the Miraculous Medal as a special group, approved by the director general, Reverend Edme Crapez, C.M. The community then became known as the Little Sisters of the Miraculous Medal (approved 1930 by Reverend François Verdier, C.M.) with the superior general of the Congregation of the Mission as their superior. Their annual, private vows were renewed on 27 November.\(^99\)

GREECE

2.1-GRE.889.0

Sisters of the Eucharist

Founded 1889 in Greece at Thessalonica (now Salonika) by Reverend Joseph Alloatti, C.M., (1857-1933), and Sister Marianna Pucci, D.C., (1848-1918) with the purpose of promoting Eucharistic devotion in Macedonia and Bulgaria, especially by religious education of youth. The house was soon transferred to Paliortsi in Macedonia. Since the Balkan Wars (1912-1913) destroyed all Catholic missions in Macedonia, the institute was subsequently forced to emigrate to Bulgaria. Alloatti had considered establishing the Priests of the Eucharist for the same purpose. Originally, the sisters recognized the superior general of the Congregation of the Mission as their superior general, and the visitor of the province of Constantinople as their Visitor. Alloatti’s own sister, Christine of Jesus (d. 1920), was the first superior of the institute. This Byzantine rite institute of diocesan right became independent from the Congregation of the Mission in 1926. Now of diocesan right, this institute is under the bishop of Sofia. It follows the Common Rules for the Daughters of Charity and has a spiritual affiliation with the Daughters of Charity.100 (Generalate: ul. Prof. Asen Zlatarov, 7; Sofia, Bulgaria.)

...of becoming religious but whose illegitimate birth was an impediment at that time. He organized them with the purpose of serving the poor in charitable works according to the Vincentian tradition. The founder willed that the Congregation of the Mission maintain a particular relation with the government of this institute, somewhat analogous to that with the Daughters of Charity. Durando, visitor of the province of Turin, Italy, had introduced the Daughters of Charity into the Piedmont region of Italy. The superior general of this institute of diocesan right is a Vincentian who belongs to the province of Turin. In 1901 this institute affiliated with the Daughters of Charity during the generalship of Reverend Antoine Fiat, C.M., (1878-1914).

Daughters of Saint Anne

(Daughters of Mary Immaculate, the Little Followers of Minims of Saint Francis)

Co-founded 1866 at Pisa, Italy, by Rosa Gattorno (1831-1900) with the assistance of Joseph Frassinetti along with Bishop John Baptist Scalabrini (1839-1905) and Giovanni Battista Tornatore, C.M., (1820-1895). Gattorno requested Tornatore to assist with drafting a rule, which was not approved by Rome. The Holy See favored a more traditional one, written by a Dominican, which was presented by the local bishop. Tornatore was responsible for infusing the institute’s spirituality and for the formation of the early sisters. The mission includes care of the sick poor in their homes as well as the care of children at risk due to poverty. This institute is in a class by itself since it has simple perpetual vows.\textsuperscript{104} (Generalate: via Merulana, 177; 00185 Rome, Italy.)

_Sisters of Gethsemani_

(Sisters of the Holy Agony)

Founded 1927 at Sassari in Sardinia, Italy, by Reverend Giovanni Battista Manzella, C.M., (1855-1937), and Mother Angela Marongiu (d. 1936) for diverse apostolates including charitable services, catechism, and instruction of young children. Eucharistic adoration and reparation are strong in this institute's spirituality.\textsuperscript{105} (Generalate: via G. Mattiotti, 56; 07100 Sassari, Italy.)

MEXICO

2.1-MEX.872.0a

Hermanas Josefinas

(Sisters of Saint Joseph of Mexico)

Founded 1872 at Mexico City, Mexico, by the Servant of God Reverend José Vilaseca, C.M., (1833-1910), and Mother Cesárea Ruiz de Esparza y Dávalos (1829-1884), in order for native religious to assume the apostolates of the Daughters of Charity (whose foreign members were being expelled from the country because of anticlericalism). Mission is to work in imitation of Mary and Joseph in maintaining a close relationship with Jesus while working for the neighbor through Christian education of children, missionary work, and charitable service as needed by local bishops. Follows Vincent de Paul's Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity with slight adaptation. Originally placed under the Hermanos Josefinos for spiritual direction (see 2.1-MEX.872.0b), but this aspect was later suppressed by the Holy See for this institute.\textsuperscript{106} (Generalate: Calle Condor, 336; Colonia Las Aguilas; Delegación Alvaro Obregón; 01710 México, D.F., Mexico.)

Congregación de Misioneros de San José

(Hermanos Josefinos; Missionary Society of Saint Joseph)

Founded 1872 at Mexico City, Mexico, by the Servant of God Reverend José Vilaseca, C.M., (1833-1910), to engage in priestly formation of native clergy for evangelization and education of youth, especially in light of the expulsion of foreign clergy and religious from the country. The congregation was formally approved 1903. Because of anticlerical persecution and civil war, members fled to the United States as refugees to San Antonio, Texas (c.1915). The institute follows Vincent de Paul's Common Rules of the Congregation of the Mission with slight adaptations. This institute of diocesan right includes priests and brothers (see 2.1-MEX.872.0a).\(^{127}\) (Generalate: Apartado Postal. 19-243; 03730 México, D.F., Mexico.)

Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin of Mataró
(Misioneras Concepcionistas)

Traces its roots to the Pious Society of the Holy Family of Bordeaux, France, (see 2.1-FRA.820.11) that opened a house in Spain at Mataró in 1846 under the leadership of Mother Alphonse Cavin (Louise Félice Cavin, 1816-1868) and Joseph Dominic Costa y Borras (1805-1864), bishop of Barcelona (1850-1857), and it soon desired to become autonomous (1850). Considered as cofounder, Reverend Gabriel Batllevel, C.M., (1812-1854), drafted the first rule. Vincentian tradition permeates the congregation through its adaptation of the Common Rules of Saint Vincent and its integration of Vincentian spirituality. The Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception, the Association of Mary, and Association of Jesus are also related. The bishop appointed Batllevel as first superior.\(^{112}\) (Generalate: via Monte del Gallo, 38; 00165 Rome, Italy.)

Marienschwestern
(Petites Soeurs Gardes-malades, or Soeurs In­fermières; Nursing Sisters of Mary of the Miraculous Medal)

Established 1880 at Graz, Austria, by Sister Leopoldine de Brandis, D.C., (1815-1900), as a foundation of the Lay Association of Visiting Nurses (see L-2.2-AUS.878.11) previously established by Brandis to supplement the health apostolates of the Daughters of Charity who were unable to provide nursing care to patients at night because of their rule.¹¹⁷ The institute subdivided: Hungary (1905), Yugoslavia (now Slovenia) (1919), and Slovakia (1922, see 2.2-SLO.878.1). The founder died (1900) as a Daughter of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul and was the first visitatrix (provincial superior) of the province of Austria (see 4.1-AUS.841.2). In 1964 (November 27), Mother Suzanne Guillemin, D.C., (1906-1968, superior general 1962-1968), received seventy-nine sisters of the Austrian institute into the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul. (See 1.1-FRA.633.22 and 2.2-SLO.878.11.)¹¹⁸ ¹¹⁷ In Conference #115 On Serving the Sick, Saint Vincent quotes the fourteenth rule: “In order to avoid the significant drawbacks that might arise, they shall not undertake to nurse the sick at night, nor women in labor, nor persons who lead an evil life. And if they are asked to do so by the poor, or by neighbors or others, they shall tell them very humbly that their Superiors forbid them to do so.” However, the founder continues to explain to his daughters how to balance availability with prudence in cases of necessity by seeking authorization from their superiors. The historical record, however, reflects how this advice was interpreted. See Conference #115, 25 November 1659, Conferences to the Daughters of Charity, 4: 284-85.

Missionary Sisters of the Presentation

Founded 1987 at Izalco in Sonsonate, El Salvador, by Sister Jenny Nolvia Manaiza Casildo to collaborate with bishops in developing effective strategies for pastoral ministry in local churches especially in areas with a high concentration of indigenous peoples struggling with poverty and hunger. FRANCE

2.2-FRA.799.11.22

Sisters of Charity of Saint Joan Antida
(Sisters of Charity Under the Protection of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1799 at Besançon, France, by Saint Joan Antida Thouret (1765-1826, canonized 1934). Thouret had been a Daughter of Charity in Paris (1787-1792) but returned to Besançon because of the French Revolution. The writing of the rule, based on the Common Rules of Saint Vincent she had memorized, was done by Thouret during a retreat at Dôle and approved by Claudius Le Coz (1740-1815), first archbishop of Besançon (1801-1815). Vincent de Paul is patron of the congregation. Its purpose was to teach poor children and to nurse and feed the poor. From its inception she had the desire to unite her community with the Daughters of Charity but was opposed by Gabriel Cortois de Pressigny (d.1823), archbishop of Besançon (1817-1821) and his successor Paul Ambroise Frère de Villefrancon (1754-1828), archbishop of Besançon (1821-1828), despite Bishop Le Coz’s previous approval. Likewise when her community opened a house in Naples, Italy, there was opposition and division resulted until a reunification in 1957.120 (Generalate: Maria in Cosmedin 5; 00153 Rome, Italy.)

2.2-FRA.829.0

Daughters of Saint Anne of Feugarolles
(Sœurs Hospitalières de Feugarolles)

Founded 1829 at Feugarolles, France, by Mademoiselle Marguerite Imbert (1790-1885), in religion Sister Adelaide, who entered the Daughters of Charity in 1865 but soon left, for ministry to the abandoned sick and poor in their homes in rural areas, and instruction of young girls. The institute had a strong devotion to Mary Immaculate, the first daughter of Saint Anne. In 1941 the institute merged with the Dominican Sisters of Charity of the Presentation of the Holy Virgin (see 2.3-FRA.696.0).121

Sisters of the Visitation of Mary (Anunciata)

Established 1883 at Budapest, Hungary, by several Daughters of Charity and Krankenjungfrauen (Nursing Sisters) sent to make a foundation and provide health care to the poor by Sister Leopoldine de Brandis, D.C., (1815-1900), visitatrix (provincial superior) of the province of Graz, Austria. After 1904 this branch of the Krankenjungfrauen became distinct and obtained ecclesiastical approval as a diocesan religious institute (see L-2.2-SLO.878.1.11 and 2.2-AUS.880.11.2).^{122}

2.2-ITA.800.2

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Montanaro_

Founded c.1800 in Imola at Rivarolo Canavese and Montanaro Canavese, Italy, by several Daughters of Charity who had left Paris because of the French Revolution and emigrated to Italy with Reverend Carlo Domenico Sicardi, C.M., (1730-1819), the Italian assistant general and later vicar general. The Vincentian priests at Turin (1790-1834) provided spiritual direction to these two small groups of sisters. The province of Turin suggested uniting with the Daughters of Charity in Paris when that was feasible. This was accomplished in 1834 and the Daughters of Charity sent sisters to assist in their formation.123

2.2-ITA.825.1.2

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Joan Antida Thouret_

Founded 1825 in Italy at Vereelli (Piedmont) as a mission by Saint Joan Antida Thouret (1765-1826, canonized 1934), a Daughter of Charity at the time of the French Revolution, at the invitation of Carlo Felice, king of Sardinia. This became an autonomous branch of the Sisters of Charity under the Protection of Saint Vincent de Paul. Members make a fourth vow of service to the poor, and Vincent de Paul is their patron. Because of political factors, this institute was separated from the Besançon foundation, but in 1957 it merged with the original community. The Sisters of Charity of Saints Bartolomea Capitanio and Vincenza Gerosa used it as a model for their institute. (See 1.2-ITA.832.0. and 2.2-FRA.799.11.22.)124

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Mary of Good Counsel_

(Sisters of Good Counsel)

Founded 1866 in Turin, Italy, as a pious union (Our Lady of the Sacred Heart) by the servant of God, Louise Angelica Clarac (1817-1887, Sister Mary Clarac, D.C., 1841-1871) from France, who had established, using primarily her own inheritance, a "House of Mercy." Reverend Jean Baptiste Étienne, C.M., superior general, attempted to require that she change her last will and testament (already written with the Ladies of Charity as beneficiaries) in favor of the Company of the Daughters of Charity. Fearing that Étienne’s plan would impoverish her institute, Clarac consulted with Saint John Bosco (1815-1888, canonized 1934) and upon his recommendation, Clarac bought a villa with sufficient land to support the work. Upon the advice of Bosco and supported by Louis Monoreno (1800-1878), bishop of Ivrea, Clarac left the Daughters of Charity in 1871 but retained her name, habit, and

Blessed Giuseppina Vannini

Daughters of Saint Camillus

Founded 1892 at Rome, Italy, by Reverend Luis Tezza (1841-1923) and Blessed Giuseppina Vannini (1859-1911, beatified 1994) for the corporal and spiritual assistance of those whose suffering puts their life at risk. They make a fourth vow of service to the poor, and have been greatly influenced by the Vincentian tradition since their founders recommended reading and studying Vincent de Paul's conferences to his Daughters of Charity. Vannini was a member of the Daughters of Charity (1883-1888) and had been directed by Reverend Angelo Mondini, C.M., (1883-1914).126 (Generalate: via Anagnina 18; 00046 Grottaferrata; Rome, Italy.)

Daughters of the Divine Will of God

(Daughters of Saint Joseph)

Cofounded 1926 at Genoa, Italy, by Elisa Mezzana (1860-1942) and Reverend Stefano Olivari to care for abandoned children and pray for priests. The founder, Sister Josephine, had entered the Daughters of Charity twice (Turin, 1878; Siena, 1891) but left for reasons of health. This diocesan institute follows the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul.127 (Generalate: salita della Madonneta, 4; 16136 Genoa, Italy.)

Monastery of the Assumption (Byzantine Rite)

(Monastero Uspenskij)

Founded 1957 at Rome, Italy, by Sister Catherine Morosoff, D.C., (b. 1910) under the direction of Pope Pius XII at the recommendation of Cardinal Eugene Tisserant, Secretary of the Sacred Congregation for the Eastern Churches, in order to start a monastery according to the Russian Rite which would train sisters to go into Russia when that country reopened. The principal aim of the monastery is the contemplative and liturgical life. Pius XII asked the various institutes to give a sister of Russian nationality for this work. Her superiors asked Morosoff, a Daughter of Charity (1931-1956), born in Russia and raised in a home for Russian children in Belgium, to join the three other founding members of this new institute. Morosoff (Mother Ekaterina) is the superior for life. The monastery is the responsibility of the Congregation for the Oriental Churches. The sisters do translation work and make vestments for priests of the Byzantine Rite. 128 (Contact: Monastero russo Uspenskij; via Della Pisana, 342; 00163 Rome, Italy.)

Little Sisters of Mary Immaculate
(Little Sisters of the Miraculous Medal)

Founded 1934 at Fort-Dauphin (Faradofay), Madagascar, by Bishop Antoine Sévat, C.M., (1878-1957), vicar apostolic of Fort Dauphin, with Sister Jeanne Agnès Lagleize, D.C., (1883-1944), to serve the rural poor and those in the bush. Its establishment was in response to the encyclical of Pius XI on Missions (Rerum Ecclesiae, 1926) that advocated establishing communities of indigenous vocations. Mother Suzanne Guillemin, D.C., (1906-1968, superior general 1962-1968) gave forty-eight sisters the habit on 17 September 1963. Guillemin also presented them with the Common Rules of the Daughters of Charity and presented patents to the new sister servants (local superiors). The sisters renewed their vows in her presence. Three French Daughters of Charity arrived on the island 1897.129

Daughters of Charity of Mary Immaculate

Founded 1915 at Tacubaya in Mexico City, Mexico, as a diocesan institute by Inés María Gasca Solórzano, (1863-1938), in order to serve the poor and neglected in hospitals, schools, asylums, and missions. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute. The founder had entered the Daughters of Charity but had not been able to remain in the novitiate in Guatemala for reasons of health. She dedicated herself to the assistance of the sick in hospitals. Twenty-one years later, the founder gathered a group of young women to establish an institute based on the Common Rules and spirit of Saint Vincent de Paul. (The foreign Daughters of Charity had recently been expelled from Mexico.) The initial intent was that the institute would unite with the Daughters of Charity in Paris when it became feasible. SLOVENIA

2.2-SLO.878.1.11

Sisters of Mary of the Miraculous Medal
(Krankenjungfrauen or Nursing Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1878 at Ljubljana, Slovenia but traces its roots to the 1852 foundation in the same place by the first six Daughters of Charity sent by Sister Leopoldine de Brandis, D.C., (1815-1900), first visitatrix of the Daughters of Charity province of Graz, Austria, (see 4.1-AUS.841.2). Their mission was to visit and tend the sick who were suffering and dying at home, lonely and abandoned, because of lack of resources. However, in 1855, the Daughters of Charity were no longer able to care for the sick in their homes since they had begun working in the local hospital. Furthermore, the sisters understood that Vincent de Paul had forbidden his Daughters to minister at night in the patients' homes (Conference of 25 November 1659). Therefore, Brandis established a lay association of nurses in 1878 to collaborate in this manner with the Daughters of Charity in their ministry. (L-2.2-AUS.878.11.) It later developed into a religious institute and spread to several countries. The Ljubljana foundation branch became a diocesan institute in 1926 and has as its mission to imitate Jesus and Mary, servants of the Lord by a total gift of self, serving the poor and sick in their homes. Its first members were Children of Mary who became known as the Krankenjungfrauen (Nursing Sisters) since they had been trained in home nursing by the Daughters of Charity. The institute maintained an affiliation with the Yugoslavian province of the Daughters of Charity, and its members were accountable to the Daughter of Charity administrator where they worked. Because of World War I (and new political and provincial boundaries), this foundation became distinct in 1919 from its Graz branch (established in 1880) and which united with the Daughters of Charity, Paris, in 1964 (see 2.2-AUS.880.11.2). Its rules are in the spirit of Saint Vincent de Paul and the spiritual directors were members of the Congregation of the Mission from 1926 to 1979. Reverend Anton Zdešar, C.M., (1871-1945), stabilized the institute and obtained its ecclesial approbation (1940) from the archbishop of Ljubljana. Reverend Leopold Smid, C.M., (1878-1953), visitor of the Yugoslavian province of the Congregation of the Mission, helped Zdešar in obtaining autonomous status for this institute in 1940. The founder inculcated in members to serve as Vincent taught: "in the sweat of their brow and the strength of their arms." The members originally made annual vows, but now make solemn ones. (See 2.2-HUN.883.1132 (Generalate: Hrenova 10; 61000 Ljubljana, Slovenia.)

SPAIN

2.2-SPA.790.0

Hospitaller Sisterhood of the Holy Cross

Traces its origins to 1790 at Barcelona, Spain, by Sister Teresa Cortés Baró, D.C., (later Mother Teresa) who was one of the first five Spanish Daughters of Charity. Their rule developed from the Common Rules of Saint Vincent. There seems to be some question regarding the founder’s original mandate from superiors of the Daughters of Charity in Paris and her own understanding that she was sent to Spain “to establish something new as needed but limited to services rendered at the hospital [of the Holy Cross].” This institute became an endowed sisterhood for the hospital of the Holy Cross and Cortés was heavily influenced by some members of the hospital’s board of directors.133 (Generalate: Calle Elisa, 22; Barcelona 23, Spain.)

2.2-SPA.841.1.11.2

Corporation of the Daughters of Charity
(Sisterhood of Charity of Reus)

Established c.1841 at Reus by Sister Luisa Estivill, D.C., (b.1809; Daughter of Charity 1826-1839), who directed the Hospital at Reus, Spain, when internal problems erupted within the Congregation of the Mission after the 1835 election of the superior general and subsequent separation from Paris. They placed themselves under the archbishop of Tarragona. Estivill edited the Common Rules of Saint Vincent (1849) for the group to follow. Although retaining the habit, the sisters no longer had canonical recognition beyond being a group of pious women dedicated to works of mercy. In 1852 almost imperceptible changes were made to differentiate the habit from that of the French Daughters of Charity. Sister Estivill did not seek to regularize the group’s canonical situation in 1857 when the Tortosa branch did so (see 1.2-SPA.857.1). They, however, maintained the institute’s title and accepted new members until 1882 when two houses at Reus reunited with the Daughters of Charity at Paris.135

Company of the Cross

Founded in 1875 at Seville, Spain, by Angela Guerrero González (1846-1932, beatified 1982) with the collaboration of her spiritual director José Torres Padilla (1811-1878). The founder had been a Daughter of Charity (Sister Angela of the Cross) and was sent for health reasons to Cuenca, Valencia, and Seville. Since she did not regain her health, she left the Little Company of Saint Vincent de Paul and established the Sisters of the Cross with the goal of uniting the spirit of penitence of the Desert Fathers with the charity of Saint Vincent.136

2.2-SPA.952.0
Missionaries of Mary Immaculate, Servants of Workers

Founded 1952 at Madrid, Spain, by Sister Francisca Ramón Muñoz de Bustillo (1902-1976) who had been a Daughter of Charity (1924-1952). The institute’s mission is to evangelize working youth. It received diocesan approval in 1961 and since 1968 there is also a lay branch known as the Secular Missionary Auxiliaries.137 (Generalate: Manuel Uribe, 9; Madrid, Spain 28033.)

Daughters of the Cross of Paris

Founded 1640 at Paris, France, by Madame L’Huillier de Villeneuve (1597-1650), a Lady of Charity, following the advice of Saint Vincent de Paul to establish a system of free schools and education of young women. The Duchess d’Aiguillon (1604-1673), also a Lady of Charity, may be considered a cofounder, and was a major benefactor, as well as advocate in obtaining approbation. At one time the institute of Saint-Quentin received refuge (due to war) from this institute. Francis de Sales provided the initial inspiration to the founder, as well as a copy of his original rules for the Visitation. Villeneuve had been actively consulting Vincent de Paul regarding community affairs since February 1648, and after her death, Saint Vincent became responsible for overseeing and stabilizing its organization and government (1650-1660). Louis Abelly (1604-1691), bishop of Rodez, became its ecclesiastical superior for twenty-four years. Foundations by this institute became diocesan after each mission was firmly established and many have combined. Some formed a federation (1969) known as the Mysterium Christi.

Dominican Sisters of Charity of the Presentation of the Holy Virgin (Sisters of the Presentation of Tours)

Founded 1696 at Sainville in Eure-et-Loir, France, in the diocese of Chartres by the Reverend François Mespolié, O.P., and Blessed Marie Poussepin (1653-1744, beatified 1994). Poussepin, as a youth had dealings with the Daughters of Charity through the Confraternity of Charity at Dourdan where her mother, Julienne Fourrier Poussepin, was a benefitctor. The Institute received refuge (due to war) from this institute. Francis de Sales provided the initial inspiration to the founder. As well as a copy of his original rules for the Visitation. Villeneuve had been actively consulting Vincent de Paul regarding community affairs since February 1648, and after her death, Saint Vincent became responsible for overseeing and stabilizing its organization and government (1650-1660). Louis Abelly (1604-1691), bishop of Rodez, became its ecclesiastical superior for twenty-four years. Foundations by this institute became diocesan after each mission was firmly established and many have combined. Some formed a federation (1969) known as the Mysterium Christi.

138 Marie de Vignerod (1604-1673), the Duchess d'Aiguillon, was an active collaborator and benefactor of Vincent de Paul. She was president of the Confraternity of Charity at Saint-Sulpice, and replaced Madame de LaMoignac as president of the Ladies of Charity of the Hôtel-Dieu. Cardinal Richelieu was her uncle. According to Abelly, the Daughters of the Cross owed a debt of gratitude to Vincent de Paul: "After God, it was M. Vincent who stretched out a hand to support them and to preserve their congregation ... it was he who, by his wise advice, greatly contributed to put them in the excellent state in which they now are, they are bound to regard him, if not as their founder and institutor, at least as their preserver and restorer." Quoted in Coste, LW, 1: 313.

139 Daughters of the Cross of Shreveport, Louisiana (United States), were founded 1855 by Mother Mary Hyacinth Le Conniat (1811-1897, superior 1855-1866; 1871-1877) as a mission of the Daughters of the Cross of Paris for whom Vincent de Paul had been a guardian after the death of their founder. It became a diocesan institute. Generalate: 1000 Fairview, Shreveport, Louisiana 71104 USA. See DIP, "Figlie della Croce, di Shreveport" 3: 1562.

Lady of Charity. From it, this institute evolved. Poussepin was a member and officer in the confraternity, as had been her mother before her. The dress of this institute for a long time resembled that of the Daughters of Charity, but with the Dominican colors of black and white. In the beginning, this institute had a special relationship with the group of women which became the Sisters of Saint Paul of Chartres (Daughters of the School of Levesville).\(^{141}\) (Generalate: via Valdieri, 4; 00135 Rome Italy.)

first sisters had a period of training in the house of the Daughters of Charity at Le Mans. The Priests of the Mission (see 1.1-FRA.625.22) also influenced their beginnings through missions. Their rule was inspired by that of the Daughters of Charity (see 1.1-FRA.633.22) whose former habit they wore for a long time. They were exhorted to humility, simplicity, and charity. On the deathbed of their founder, the sisters were counseled to follow the good example of Saint Vincent’s Daughters of Charity. They conducted the same type of apostolates. Vincent de Paul was designated as a patron of this diocesan institute.144 (Generalate: 8, Place de la Basilique; 53600 Évron, France.)

* Helpers of the Souls in Purgatory
(Auxiliatrices)

Founded 1856 at Paris, France, by Blessed Eugénie Smet, (1825-1871, beatified 1957), (in religion, Mary of Providence), whose community, in its origin, collaborated with the Vincentian priests at rue de Sèvres and with the Daughters of Charity at rue de Poulletier, as well as at rue Oudinot and rue du Bac. The mission of this institute is to pray, suffer, and work on behalf of souls in purgatory.145 (Generalate: 16, rue Saint Jean-Baptiste de la Salle; 75006 Paris, France.)

GUATEMALA

3.1-GUA.974.0

Sisters of the Resurrection

Traces its origins to the 1974 establishment at San Pedro Carcha in Alta Verapaz, Guatemala, at the initiative of Sister Ana Mercedes Francia, D.C., and other Daughters of Charity. This group of indigenous lay volunteers was formed in the Vincentian tradition to minister to indigent children, youth, and the poor in rural areas. In 1977 this group began to live in community as a religious institute under the guidance of Francia for its formation and apostolates. In 1981 Reverend George Puthenpura, S.D.B., assumed its direction and the group became an autonomous diocesan institute (1987) working in collaboration with the Salesians. Its members are indigenous Kekchi.146 (Generalate: Centro Talita Kumi, Apartado 7, San Pedro Carcha Avenida; San Pedro Carcha, Guatemala.)

NIGERIA

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Innsbruck_

Founded 1839 at Innsbruck, Austria, as a development from the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg (see 1.2-FRA.734.3F) to educate the young and care for the sick and elderly in their homes. The first candidates for this institute were formed at Munich. In 1839 it sought pontifical approval of its rule, but Rome reverted to the rule of the institute at Vienna (see 1.2-AUS.832.1.11) by the same name and appointed Reverend John Duille as their ecclesiastical superior. This institute is a member of the Vincentian Federation.148 (Generalate: Rennweg 40; 6020 Innsbruck, Austria.)

4.1-AUS.841.1.2

_Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Graz_

Developed 1841 at Graz, Austria, from the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg via the diocesan foundation at Munich (1832) (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F). The diocesan institute (twenty-four sisters in four foundations) led by their superior general, Sister Leopoldine de Brandis, (1815-1900), united with the Daughters of Charity, Paris, in 1850 (see 1.1-FRA.633.22). When de Brandis died in 1900 the province had 2700 sisters and 210 houses. In 1882 this institute assisted the Sisters of Charity of Salzburg in uniting with Paris (see 4.1-AUS.844.3.1.2). Brandis had previously founded a lay Association of Visiting Nurses (see L-2.2-AUS.878.11) and the Nursing Sisters of Mary of the Miraculous Medal (see 2.2-AUS.880.11.2 and 2.2-SLO.878.1.11).149

4.1-AUS.844.3.1.2

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Salzburg
(Sisters of Mercy of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1844 at Schwarzach, Austria, by Cardinal Frederick Joseph von Schwarzenberg (1809-1885), archbishop of Salzburg, with the collaboration of the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg via the diocesan foundation (1832) at Munich (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F) in the formation of the first sisters: Madeleine Preisinger and Catherine Königsberger. It was established in order to remedy widespread poverty in the mountainous regions that lacked hospitals. In 1882 this institute, led by Mother Marie Vinzentia Praxmarer (1822-1903), united with the Daughters of Charity, Paris (see 1.1-FRA.633.22). Praxmarer became the first visitatrix (1882-1902) after the union with Paris. Encouraging the union was Sister Leopoldine de Brandis, visitatrix of the Daughters of Charity, province of Graz, and Reverend Ferdinand Médis, C.M., (1841-1915). Schwarzenberg wrote Praxmarer regarding the union with Paris: “I have been informed of your union with the true Family of Saint Vincent de Paul. I am most happy on account of it. In 1844 I earnestly desired this but insurmountable difficulties prevented it; to my successor [Archbishop Albrecht Eder, O.S.B.] it has been granted to accomplish the work and I rejoice in it.”

Sisters of Charity of Verviers

Established 1672 at Verviers (now Belgium, then a town within the electorate of Cologne), by Reverend René Alméras, C.M., (1613-1672), second superior general of the Congregation of the Mission and the Daughters of Charity (1661-1672), who, in collaboration with Sister Mathurine Guérin, D.C., (1631-1704), third superioress general of the Daughters of Charity (1667-1673; 1676-1682; 1685-1691) sent two Daughters of Charity there for the care of the elderly. In the home for the aged which they founded hangs a portrait of Sister Augustine Ancroy, D.C., (1647-1693). This group separated from Paris (although there is no record when this happened) probably at the time of the French Revolution. At the beginning of the nineteenth century, the sister nurses, who had become dependent on the local bishop, continued their services to the elderly. One day the original contract signed by Alméras and Guérin was discovered and the sisters realized that the institute had once been attached to the French Daughters of Charity. Despite some difficulties, Jean Baptiste Étienne approved a reunion. This institute united with the Daughters of Charity of Paris in 1854 and placed it under the leadership of Sister Marie Ligarde, D.C., (1822-1889).\(^{153}\)

Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul of Rumbeke

Founded 1756 at Rumbeke, Belgium, by Reverend Peter Francis Valcke, for charity to the poor, especially the sick. Originally known as Daughters of Charity, this was the first institute in Belgium to assume the name of Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul, after its patron. The institute strives to live in humility, simplicity, and charity. The founder was inspired by the example of Saint Vincent to respond to the urgent social needs of eighteenth-century Belgium. This institute

Sisters of Charity of Jesus and Mary

Founded 1803 at Lovendegem, a village near Ghent, Belgium, by Reverend Pierre Joseph Triest (1760-1836) in collaboration with Maria Teresa van der Gauwen (Mother Placide) for education, charitable services including care of orphans and nursing according to the spirit of Saint Vincent de Paul, patron of this institute. The rule reflects the double inspiration of charity of Vincent de Paul and the contemplation of Saint Bernard. Triest wanted to obtain the Common Rules of Saint Vincent but was unable to do so. Triest also founded three other Belgian institutes: the Brothers of Charity (1807), the Brothers of Saint John of God (1823) to nurse the sick at home, and the Sisters of the Holy Childhood of Jesus (1835) for the care and education of foundlings. In 1954 the Hospitallers of Saint Vincent de Paul of Eeklo (see 4.1-BEL.837.2a) united with the latter. Because of his great compassion for the needy in the post-revolutionary era, the founder was known as the Vincent de Paul of Belgium.159 (Generalate: 25 rue Saint Bernard; 1060 Brussels, Belgium.)

4.1-BEL.803.2

Sisters of Saint Vincent de Paul of Zomergem

Founded 1803 at Zomergem, Belgium, when some pious young women came together to dedicate themselves for instruction of youth, and care of the sick and elderly. In 1963 this institute of diocesan right united with the Sisters of the Infancy of Jesus.160

Daughters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary of Crehen

(Daughters of Divine Providence of Crehen, Mothers of the Poor)

Founded 1822 at Crehen in Côtes d’Armor, France, by the Reverend Guy Homery (1781-1861) for service of the poor, the care of orphans, nursing the sick, educating youth, and spiritual retreats. Vincent de Paul is a patron of this institute. The founder wished to imitate him as a model for the clergy of France, and he wished his members to be involved in the active apostolate without the cloister. Members make a fourth vow of service to the poor. Homery told his daughters that this institute of diocesan right had the same mission as that of Vincent de Paul.214 (Generalate: 11, rue Guy-Homery; 22130 Crehen, France.)

4.1-FRA.822.0b

Sisters of Mercy of Sées

(Servants of Jesus and Mary; Sisters of Charity)

Founded 1822 in Sées, France, by Reverend Jean Jacques Bazin (1767-1855) for the care of abandoned children as well as for the corporal and spiritual assistance of the sick in their homes, especially the poor. Reverend Napoléon Alexandre Théodore Durand (1804-1877) assisted Bazin in the development of the rule for this diocesan institute which has Vincent de Paul as its patron.215 (Generalate: 60, rue d’Argenté; 61500 Sées, France.)

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Mainz-Heppenheim

From 1921, this institute, located in Heppenheim, Germany, was a province of the Sisters of Charity of Strasbourg (see 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F), and in 1970 it became independent. Its mission includes service of the poor through elementary education, nursing, and care of the elderly. Members follow the spirituality of Saint Vincent de Paul. The institute is a member of the Vincentian Federation. (See 4.1-IND.973.1.3F.)226 (Generalate: Kalterer Strasse 3; 64646 Heppenheim, Germany.)

INDIA

Sisters of the Destitute

Founded 1927 by Reverend Varghese Payyapilly at Chumangumvelly in Kerala, India, in the archdiocese of Ernakulam, to nurse the poor aged and infirm, to care for destitute and handicapped children, and to educate them. Saint Vincent de Paul is the principal patron of the institute which also has a group of lay auxiliaries, called Marthas who come from poor and uneducated backgrounds.227 (Generalate: Thottumugham P.O.; Aluva 683 105; Kerala, India.)

Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul

Founded 1973 at Mananthavady in Kerala, India, as a new branch of four distinct German congregations of Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Freiburg, Fulda, Heppenheim, and Paderborn, members of the Vincentian Federation. Each of these institutes had members from the different Syro-Malabar and Syro-Malankara dioceses in India. An agreement to erect a common filial house was reached in a 1973 conference of these four Congregations held at Strasbourg, France. The founding congregations formed an administrative body called the Referat for Indian Mission which provided governance through a regional superior until the Indian foundation became independent. This institute also belongs to the Vincentian Federation of Germany and became fully independent, with its own superior general, 29 August 1994. The founding congregations thought it better that their sisters work together in India, not in separate German based institutes. (See 1.2-GER.846.1.11F; 4.1-GER.834.1.11F; 4.1-GER.921.1.11F; 1.2-GER.841.3.1.11F.)

Daughters of Charity under the Patronage of Padre Filippone

Founded 1727 at Palermo, Italy, by several pious women who revered the charitable example of the late Reverend Nicolò Placido Filippone, and with the collaboration of Michelangelo Sozzi and the Priests of the Union of Saint Vincent (see 4.1-ITA.745.0) in the same city. Their purpose was to care for the sick, orphans, and widows. Reverend Louis de Bras, C.M., (1678-1761, superior general, 1747-1761), approved an affiliation with the Daughters of Charity in Paris (1754). Since 1778 its administration had been by government appointed deputies. This small diocesan community was led by Sister Vincenza Giovanna Filippone, one of the founding sisters. In addition to Reverend Nicolò Placido Filippone, Vincent de Paul is patron. This diocesan

\textit{Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of the Prince of Palagonia}

Founded 1830 at Palermo, Italy, by Francis Paul Gravina (1800-1854), the Prince of Palagonia and the Count of Ventimiglia, for education and instruction of youth, care of orphans, and assistance to the elderly. The prince was a Third Order Franciscan whose request for Daughters of Charity could not be satisfied, therefore he established this institute. In addition to the evangelical counsels, there is a fourth vow regarding service of the poor. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute whose motto is \textit{Caritas Christi Urget Nos}. Members are urged to read the conferences of Vincent de Paul to the Daughters of Charity.\textsuperscript{231} (Generalate: via Antonino Pecoraro 102; 90144 Palermo, Italy.)

apostolic of Miyazaki. Cavali previously organized a woman’s lay conference of Saint Vincent de Paul to serve the sick and poor which developed into this institute. Their motto is: “Blessed are the merciful” and “Go preach the Good News to all creation.” The spirit of this diocesan institute is to serve the poor, including education in Christian doctrine, visiting of the sick, and other forms of social services. The institute suffered greatly during World War II but afterwards spread internationally.

NIGERIA

4.1-NIG.961.0

Daughters of Mary, Mother of Mercy

Founded 1961 in the diocese of Umuahia, Nigeria, by Bishop Anthony Gogo Nwedo, C.S.Sp. (b.1912), to live a life of prayer and penance, to care for the poor and needy in hospitals, orphanages and homes, to teach in schools, and to work in parishes. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute. His conferences, as well as spirit of humility, simplicity, and charity, are recommended. The founder of this institute of diocesan right has as his episcopal motto: Evangelizare pauperibus misit me. There was some early influence on the founder by the Daughters of Saint Vincent de Paul of Graz and Innsbruck.240 (Generalate: PO Box 1383; Umuahia, Abia State, Nigeria.)

Sons of Mary, Mother of Mercy

Founded 1970 in the diocese of Umuahia, Nigeria, by Bishop Anthony Gogo Nwedo, C.S.Sp. (b.1912), to help the poor in parishes and to teach in schools. Vincent de Paul is patron of this institute of diocesan right and his conferences, as well as spirit, are recommended. The founder stated: “I also thought of the poor and the work of Saint Vincent de Paul; and so took him as one of the secondary patrons of the two congregations.”241 (Generalate: PO Box 99; Umuahia, Abia State, Nigeria.)

THE NETHERLANDS

4.1-NTH.820.0

Daughters of Mary and Joseph

Cofounded 1820 at ’s Hertogenbosch, The Netherlands, by Reverend James Anthony Heeren (1775-1859) and Katarina van Hees (1769-1825) in order to contribute to the solution of the social needs in the area. The mission of the congregation is to do works of charity according to the spirit and frame of mind of Saint Vincent de Paul without regard for person, nationality, or religion. Vincent is a patron of this institute and his name is engraved on the profession ring, along with the names of Jesus, Mary, and Joseph. The founders recommended reading Saint Vincent’s conferences to members of this diocesan institute along with the practice of humility, simplicity, and charity.242 (Generalate: Choorstraat 7; 5211 KZ ’s Hertogenbosch, The Netherlands.)

Congregation of Brothers of Our Lady, Mother of Mercy

Founded 1844 at Tilburg, The Netherlands, by Reverend Johannes Zwijsen (1794-1877), later bishop of 's Hertogenbosch and archbishop of Utrecht, as a lay congregation (originally with priests) to serve the poor, especially youth, according to the Vincentian tradition primarily in educational apostolates. Humility, simplicity, and charity are its characteristic virtues. Vincent de Paul is a secondary patron and his spirituality is followed by this diocesan institute. (See 1.2-NTH.832.11 and 4.1-USA.970.11.1.2.) (Generalate: Gasthuisring, 54; 5041 DT Tilburg, The Netherlands.)

Congregation of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, Fathers of Utrecht

(Congregation of the Priests of Utrecht)

Founded 1873 at Utrecht, The Netherlands, by Archbishop Andrew Ignatius Schaepman (1815-1882) to make the members of the institute perfect, to sanctify them, and to be useful to one's neighbors by the practice of charity. The 1878 rule states that their mission is twofold: service of neighbor and personal sanctification. Vincent de Paul is a patron of this diocesan institute and his rule has been adapted. SPAIN

4.1-SPA.860.1
Religious of the Holy Family of Urgel

Founded 1860 at Cervera, Spain, in the diocese of Urgel by Sister Ana María Janer v Anglarill (1800-1885) who had originally been a Sister of Charity of Cervera but because of civil war (1836) had to emigrate to France, seeking refuge for four years with the Daughters of Charity in Toulouse. The bishop of Urgel asked her to come to his diocese and direct the hospital there. Two postulants accompanied her, and the institute grew and expanded into educational works also. The founder chose Vincent de Paul as a primary patron of the institute until 1872. However, Bishop José Caixal (1803-1879) subsequently imposed Ignatian direction and rules and changed its patronage (1872). It is of diocesan right.246 (Generalate: Carretera de Caldas, Km.14, Apartado postal 85; 08191 Rubi, Barcelona, Spain.)

UNITED STATES

4.1-USA.970.11.1.2
Sisters of Charity of Our Lady, Mother of the Church

Established in 1970 in the diocese of Norwich, Connecticut, United States, by Mother Marie Alma as an independent foundation of the Sisters of Charity of Our Lady, Mother of Mercy (see 1.2-NTH.832.11) which traces its roots to the 1832 foundation at Tilburg by Reverend Johannes Zwijsen (1794-1877), later bishop of 's Hertogenbosch and archbishop of Utrecht. Their mission is primarily for the education of poor children. Vincent de Paul is patron of the congregation, and his writings and teachings are recommended for spiritual reading. In 1974 the American province of the Sisters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul of Zams (see 1.2-AUS.823.1.11.3) united with this diocesan institute. Sisters of Charity of Saint Mary La Forêt
(Daughters of Charity of Saint Mary)

Founded c.1679 at the hospital of Angers, France, with the approval of Bishop Henri Arnauld for the education and Christian formation of youth and care of sick and elderly. Members of this institute of diocesan right propose to live the spirituality of Saint Vincent de Paul, especially his commitment to the poor.248 (Generalate: 16, rue Valentin Hauy; 49100 Angers, France.)

IRELAND

5.1-IRE.816.0
Pious Congregation of the Religious Sisters of Charity
(Irish Sisters of Charity)

Founded 1816 at Dublin, Ireland, by Mary Aikenhead (1787-1858) in cooperation with Archbishop Daniel Murray (1768-1852) for service of the poor. The rule was modeled on that of the Jesuits, but the sisters take a fourth vow to serve the poor. The original apostolate was to the poor and sick. Their motto is Caritas Urget Nos. The founder did not adopt the full Common Rules of Saint Vincent because they did not want annual vows.249 (Generalate: Mount Saint Anne's Miltown; Dublin, 6 Ireland.)

ITALY

5.1-ITA.829.0

Sisters of Charity, Daughters of Holy Mary dell’Orto

Founded 1829 at Chiavari in the archdiocese of Genoa, Italy, by Saint Antonio Maria Gianelli (1789-1846, canonized 1951), later bishop of Bobbio, and his collaborator, Caterina Podestà (1809-1884), to “do all for everyone in order to gain all for God.” Gianelli wrote the rules, taking into account the principles proposed by Vincent in his Common Rules, especially recommending the practice of humility, simplicity, and charity. Members were exhorted to read Vincent’s conferences. Poverty and extreme frugality characterized this institute. The founder desired to be a supplement to the Daughters of Charity of Saint Vincent de Paul, especially by nursing in small poor areas which could not afford the maintenance of large groups of sisters. It is an institute of diocesan right. (Generalate: Via Quatro Cantoni 45; 00184 Rome Italy.)

5.2 Institutes which have adapted aspects of the Vincentian charism of evangelization and service of the poor but with a unique emphasis.

BELGIUM

5.2-BEL.807.0

Brothers of Charity
(Brothers of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1807 at Ghent, Belgium, by Pierre Joseph Triest (1760-1836) for nursing and education. This priest founded four congregations to aid the poor in the spirit of Saint Vincent de Paul, the patron of this institute. Triest himself was known as the Vincent de Paul of Belgium. Their motto: Deus caritas est. (See 4.1-BEL.803.0.)

Sisters of Charity of Cardinal Sancha

Founded 1869 by Archbishop Ciríaco María Sancha y Hervás (1833-1904), later cardinal, at Santiago, Cuba, in order to serve the poor, who were Sancha’s constant concern. Although following Benedictine spirituality, the founder was greatly inspired by Vincent and his works.252 (Generalate: José Gabriel García No.1; Ciudad Colonial Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.)

FRANCE

5.2-FRA.701.22

Sisters of Providence of Sées

Founded c.1701 at Sées, France, by Reverend Julien Lefebvre (1661-1733) and Marguerite Guérin (1669-1749) for education of youth and care of the sick in their homes. Guérin became the first superior general (1719-1744). The bishop wanted to have centers for charitable outreach in his diocese such as Vincent de Paul had initiated. A Lady of Charity was appointed to manage the school. In 1921, the Ladies of Mary of Longny united with this institute of diocesan right.253 (Generalate: 17, rue Loutreuil; 61500 Sées, France.)

ITALY

5.2-ITA.830.2

Sisters of the Little House of Providence under the Auspices of Saint Vincent de Paul

(Sisters of Charity under the Protection of Saint Vincent de Paul or Vincenzine)

Founded 1830 at Turin, Italy, by Saint Joseph Benedetto Cottolengo (1786-1842, canonized 1934) with the collaboration of the widow Marianna Pullini Nasi (n.d.) to provide hospitality to the sick and infirm at a small hospital, The Little House of Divine Providence at Valdocco. Cottolengo himself had been greatly influenced by the example of Saint Vincent de Paul and had a deep devotion to him which he passed on to this institute. This was only one of several institutes founded by Cottolengo; each was founded to do a particular aspect of his mission. After Vatican II, a majority of these were united (1967) as a single institute of diocesan right.254 (Generalate: via Cottolengo, 14; Turin, Italy.)

Brothers of Saint Joseph Benedetto Cottolengo
(Brothers of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1833 at Turin, Italy, by Saint Joseph Benedetto Cottolengo (1786-1842, canonized 1934) as a lay group to assist in providing hospitality to the sick and infirm as a part of the “Little House of Providence,” a center of charity. Subsequently Cottolengo established several other institutes which later became united into two main groups: active and lay. This lay institute of pontifical right was patterned after Vincent de Paul’s Confraternities of Charity and maintains a particular devotion to him. In 1948 it affiliated with the Order of Friars Minor.

Servants of the Poor of Saint Vincent de Paul
(Sisters of the Poor of Saint Vincent de Paul)

Founded 1919 at Licata in Agrigento, Italy, by Reverend Vincent Morinello (1870-1939) and Anna Pisciota (Sister Agnes) (1889-1971). Its purpose is the education of youth, care of the sick, and assistance to the elderly. As pastor at Licata, the founder had previously instituted the Conference of Saint Vincent de Paul (founded by Ozanam) and then decided to also establish a diocesan institute of religious with the same Vincentian commitment to service. (Generalate: via Ammiraglio Luigi Mascherpa, Pallavicino; 90146 Palermo, Italy.)

SRI LANKA

Franciscan Brothers of Saint Vincent de Paul

Established 1870 in the diocese of Colombo, Sri Lanka, by Reverend Louis Piccinelli (b.1823) a Frenchman who later became vicar apostolic of Colombo (1868). Its purposes included religious education of youth and care of orphans. It was initially established as the Confraternity of Mary Immaculate, and Archbishop Christopher Bonjean, O.M.I., (1823-1892), elevated it to a religious institute in 1891.

In 1910 the Holy See decreed that it merge with the Order of Friars Minor. However, in 1949 a subgroup separated and became an autonomous institute of diocesan right under the name of Franciscan Brothers of Mary, reverting more to the intent of their founder.257 (Generalate: Maggona, Sri Lanka.)

Sisters of Mercy of Münster
(Clemensschwestern or Sisters of Charity of Clement-August)

Founded 1808 in Germany by Bishop Clemens Drote zu Vischering (1773-1845), archbishop of Cologne and vicar general of Münster, who was inspired by a biography of Saint Vincent de Paul to form an institute of sisters in Saint Vincent’s spirit in Münster to serve the poor, sick, and needy. This was the first institute founded in Germany after the French Revolution. The founder incorporated Vincentian influences in the rules he compiled and gave Saint Vincent as patron, as well as Mary, Mother of Sorrows. (See 1.2-FRA.734.3.11F and 1.2-NTH.832.11.) The rules of this institute of diocesan right were later used by other founders, including Johannes Zwijsen, archbishop of Utrecht.

Congregation of Sisters of Charity
(Sisters of Charity of Saint Francis of Assisi)

Founded 1944 at Chowanoor, India, in the diocese of Trichur by Reverend Augustin John Ooken (1880-1956) for charitable services and social work among the poor, including education of youth, the care of orphans, and the sick. Ooken had been greatly influenced by the ideals of Saint Vincent, and he called his institute Sisters of Charity, in imitation of Vincent de Paul, its patron. The name was later changed to Sisters of Charity of Saint Francis of Assisi by the bishop, a Franciscan, who was their ecclesiastical superior. The institute collaborated with the Congregation of Mary Immaculate and the Sisters of the Destitute in Ernakulam. In 1966, this diocesan institute united with the Capuchin Order. In 1994 this institute again changed its name.

Daughters of Our Lady of Compassion

Founded 1892 in New Zealand by Marie Henriette Suzanne Aubert (1835-1926) for a variety of social ministries, including care of the sick, teaching, and serving the poorest of the poor, especially the Maori. The founder, while studying nursing in Lyons, had known the Daughters of Charity of Paris, and had also been inspired by Rosalie Rendu, D.C., (1786-1856), and her mission for the poor. The constitutions of this institute contain quotations from the conferences of Saint Vincent de Paul. During the Crimean War, the founder worked with the Daughters of Charity in their hospitals. At the time Aubert established this diocesan institute, the Society of Saint Vincent de Paul was very active in New Zealand.
