With the same intensity she showed as a Blue Demon, Samantha Quigley Smith (EDU ’10, Med ’12) is capturing attention as a college women’s basketball coach. She was honored as a Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference Coach of the Year for two consecutive seasons, was named the Illinois Basketball Coaches Association Coach of the Year in 2016 and was a finalist for the Women’s Basketball Coaches Association/United States Marine Corps National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Coach of the Year Award.

“I was a really intense coach at a young age, and when I say ‘young age,’ I mean five years ago,” laughs Quigley Smith, who just turned 30. She’s in her first season as head basketball coach for Lewis University, a NCAA Division II college in Romeoville, Ill., where she once attended basketball summer camps. She started her coaching career at the University of St. Francis in Joliet, Ill., first as assistant coach and then head women’s basketball coach. Within four years, she guided the team from a losing record to two consecutive regular-season titles and the top ranking in Division II of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

She uses her youth to build strong relationships with her players and potential recruits. “I was a player not that long ago. They can relate to me,” she says. “I think that if you do a great job of building relationships, the score’s going to take care of itself.”

Basketball is a Quigley family tradition. Her father played for legendary coach Pat Sullivan at St. Francis. Her mother’s jersey hangs in the rafters there, one of only four women’s numbers that were retired. Her uncle, Brian Michalak, has coached at both St. Francis and Lewis. Her sister, Allie Quigley (EDU ’08), is in her 10th season in the Women’s National Basketball Association.

Quigley Smith says she may pursue NCAA Division I coaching someday, but for now she is content to coach at Lewis and raise her two young children. “If there’s something you want to pursue in life, there should be no limitations,” she says. “I knew I wanted to be a coach. I knew I wanted to have a family. I knew I wanted to stay in the Chicago area. To be doing all those things right now is great.”
